Millinery & Cloaks

All are Invited and All are Welcome.

B. NUGENT & BRO.,

817, 819, 821 North Fifth Street, between Franklin Avenue and Union Market.

S. J. BRITTAIN & CO.

Take this opportunity to return their thanks for the many compliments paid them by the Ladies, the Press and the Public in general, at our Grand Opening, for having the LARGEST AND HANDSOMEST DISPLAY OF

Millinery Goods

Ever shown in this city; and, while we feel highly flattered at these kind expressions, we shall more than ever (as our large sales the past three days amply prove) strictly adhere to our past record of selling all goods at the LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES. Doing, as we do, three times the amount of business that any similar establishment in this city does, and having a very large wholesale trade in addition, our advantages in the Millinery line can not be questioned. Our display of

French Pattern Hats and Bonnets,

In addition to our own manufacture, has been a great surprise to the Ladies of this city:

1. In point of elegance.
2. In the great number shown.
3. In fine workmanship and blending of shades; and,

Lastly, the EXTREME LOW PRICES ASKED. In our

Untrimmed Hats and Bonnet Department

We are showing over 200 different shapes and almost as many shades, in Satin, Plush, Velvet, Felt, Fur and Straw. It often happens that Ladies are at a loss how to choose, the assortment is so great, while our prices will always be found THE VERY LOWEST.

Milliners visiting our city this week are politely invited to inspect stock and get prices.

FRANK'S FIND.

Capt. Gurley's Successful Search for an Abducted Boy.

Carried Off by a Negro Tramp—Subjected to the Most Terrible Torture—Three Days and Nights Without Food—Home Again—Bloodhounds at Work.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., September 24.—Capt. Frank V. Gurley, of Gurleyville, Ala., who conducted the search for Ogletree, the tramp who abducted the child of James C. White, of Jackson County, Ala., arrived in this city yesterday with the posse returning from the search for the abducted child whom they had recovered near Newman, Ga., on Friday. The POST-DISPATCH correspondent had a conversation with Capt. Gurley, from whom was obtained the

PARTICULARS OF THE BOLD DEED.

Ogletree came to the house of Mr. White on the 28th of August, and after begging for his dinner enticed the child, who is about 8 years old, away from the house, the father being in the field at the time. As soon as Ogletree was out of sight of the house he lifted the child on his shoulder and made for the woods, and traveled day and night. Mr. White, when he returned to his house, missed the child and immediately aroused the whole neighborhood, and a posse started in pursuit. Ogletree took a very roundabout way and exhausted every means to throw his pursuers off the track, but after following him several days they discovered his plan. The first definite information learned of his movements was near Collinsville, Ala. From there he was reported to have gone towards Newnan, in Paulding County.

FULLY A THOUSAND PEOPLE

were searching for him by this time. On arriving at the cabin of a negro near Newnan, Ogletree tied the boy to a tree in the woods and went into the house to procure something to eat. While he was eating his supper his pursuers arrived at the house, but the abductor walked out a back door, moving through the garden and fields and made his escape. The boy was found tied to a tree several hundred yards from the house, and when Mr. White saw him his demonstrations of joy were unbounded. The little fellow was emaciated and

HALF DEAD WITH FRIGHT,

but he was soon able to tell a terrible story of his treatment by Ogletree, who, he stated, had beaten him unmercifully on every complaint and threatened to kill him if he made his identity known. The boy's body was covered with bruises received at the hands of Ogletree, and his legs, hands and face were terribly lacerated by briars and bushes through which he was compelled to pass. He said that on several occasions, when Ogletree entered a house on the road or went into a town, he was bound to a tree, at times being left for hours, and once all night. He had gone without anything to eat for nearly three days and nights. No one was allowed to speak to him, Ogletree claiming that he was his son and

WAS DEMENTED AND DEAF.

Under this treatment he was afraid to ask for assistance or to make known his condition. Capt. Gurley says that this is the fourth boy known to have been abducted by Ogletree, who always escaped arrest. A dispatch received this evening from Newnan reports that the whereabouts of the abductor had been learned and that bloodhounds were on his track. Efforts are being made to induce the Governor of Alabama to offer a reward for his arrest. If caught by his pursuers he certainly will be lynched. Capt. Gurley, who had the posse that rescued the boy in charge, was captain of the confederate company which had Gen. McCook in charge when he was slain. He was court-martialled and sentenced to be hanged for bushwhacking, but he produced his official papers and was released. The people are still scouring the woods with bloodhounds in search of Ogletree.

LATEST EDITION.

BOOKWALTER'S "BAR'L."

The Wealthy Ohio Politician in the Interviewer's Hands.

He Denies the Allegations of a Cleveland Paper—Hoadly's Chances of Election are Good—The Country Democracy Solid for Him—Compliment to the New York World.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 24.—On Friday the Cleveland Leader published a statement that Mayor Farley and Treasurer Axworthy, of that city, had suddenly departed for New York for the ostensible purpose of selling sewer bonds of the city to Mr. J. M. Bookwalter, who it was inferred is the owner of a "bar'l." It was further alleged that the "bar'l" was at the hotel Brunswick, and that in consequence that hostelry was the mecca of Democratic pilgrims who come East. Mr. Bookwalter was seen at the Hotel Brunswick last night by a representative of the POST-DISPATCH and was shown a copy of the paper making these allegations. As he perused its contents he smiled. Then turning to the correspondent he asked:

"Well, what do you wish me to say?"

"Have you been negotiating with Mayor Farley or Treasurer Axworthy regarding the purchase of Cleveland sewer bonds?"

"Well, this is the first time that I have ever heard of this," replied Mr. Bookwalter. What have I to do with sewer bonds?"

"That's just what the POST-DISPATCH would like to know," remarked the correspondent.

"Well, you can say for me that I did not know until just now that Mayor Farley or Treasurer Axworthy contemplated a visit to this city.

I HAVE NOT SEEN EITHER OF THEM,

nor do I know even now that they are here. This being the case, I cannot very well see how I could have been particularly intimate with them. As to the 'bar'l,' you would have to employ the shrewdest detective to find it."

"What is the object of your visit to the city?"

"It is purely on matters connected with my own private business. I am about to double the capacity of my turbine wheel and steam engine works at Springfield, and I am here for the purpose of purchasing a plant. As far as politics is concerned, I may chat with personal friends on the subject, but the 'bar'l' and political maneuvering of all sorts seem to be furthest from my thoughts at the present time."

"What do you think of Hoadly's chances for election in Ohio?"

"I think there is no doubt of his success. He has, of course, been seriously handicapped by his ill health, being thus unable to lend his personal aid to the conduct of the campaign. He has, however, able lieutenants who are prosecuting an agressive fight on the enemy's forces."

"How about the Cincinnati controversy; do you think the dissension existing between McLean and Pendleton will prove a serious obstacle to Hoadly's success?"

"Oh, no; the Democratic party of Ohio is thoroughly united in every other respect. In the country the

FEELING IS STRONG FOR HOADLY.

Because there is a little fight between two small faction, it does not necessarily follow that the whole party must be engaged in it. The Democrats know that they have a hard and bitter conflict before them, but they are bound to win. The general feeling in the party throughout Ohio is one of extreme confidence. The Ohio election is regarded as the key note for 1884, and the party realizes this fact."

"Have you seen the WORLD and noted the change of management?"

"I picked it up three months ago, not knowing it had changed hands, on my arrival from Europe. I could not recognize the paper. It is doing splendid work for the Democratic party, and may be considered now, if it never was before, the organ of all true and loyal Democrats. Besides this it is a newspaper. I find something interesting in every department, but to me particularly in the industrial. This is, of course, natural, my business being such as it is. Evidently it requires a Western man to make an Eastern newspaper what it should be. I have heard nothing but compliments for the WORLD throughout the West."

At this point the interview was broken off, Mr. Bookwalter being compelled to fill an important engagement.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, September 24.—South Atlantic States, local rains, partly cloudy weather, winds generally from south to west, stationary or slight rise in temperature and barometer. Gulf States, generally fair weather, clearing in the eastern portions, north to west winds, a slight rise in temperature, stationary or a slight rise in barometer, Tennessee and the Ohio Valley, local rains in east portions, fair weather in west portions, southwest to northwest winds, stationary or slight rise in temperature and barometer. Lower Lake region, light rains, partly cloudy weather, winds shifting to southwest and northwest, falling followed by rising barometer, slight change in temperature. Upper Lake region and upper Mississippi Valley, local rains and partly cloudy weather, winds shifting to north and west, generally higher barometer, lower temperature in northern portion. Missouri Valley, fair weather in northern portions, local rains followed by fair weather in southern portions, winds mostly from north to west, higher barometer, stationary or slight fall in temperature. The rivers will remain about stationary.

The Rose Clark-Ambler Murder.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., September 24.—The hearing of the Rose Clark-Ambler murder case was resumed at Stratford this morning. Several witnesses testified in regard to the condition of the roads on the night of the murder. Loring Ambler, brother of Rose's former husband, testified regarding the family relations. Wm. Smith of Birmingham also testified that Wm. Lewis came into his restaurant on Tuesday after the murder with a friend, talked about the case and said: "If I was in Stratford, I could put my hand on the man who killed Rose." The testimony this morning is said to point toward Lewis as knowing more of the case than he is willing to admit.

Fast Ocean Travel.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 24.—The Union Line steamer Alaska arrived yesterday from Liverpool, having completed the passage from Queenstown to Sandy Hook in six days, twenty-one hours and forty minutes, thus beating her own previous best westerly record of six days, twenty-three hours and forty-eight minutes, by two hours and eight minutes.

The President's Pleasure Trip.

NEWPORT, R. I., September 24.—President Arthur remained at Frenchville this morning receiving callers. Among the latter was Collector Cozzens, to whom the President stated he would go to Bristol on the revenue steamer Alaska. He will embark at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning. To-night he dines with George Henry Warren of New York.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Americans at Honolulu Want Protection—After Mr. Hill's Position.

WASHINGTON, September 24.—Capt. Erbin, commanding the United States sloop Pensacola, reports to the Navy Department from Honolulu, August 31, that during his stay in Honolulu his personal association with American merchants and business men convinced him of a feeling of uneasiness on account of the uncertainty of a continuation of the reciprocity treaty. Large numbers of working men from all parts of the world were brought there to work the sugar estates operated largely by American citizens upon the credit system. These proprietors fear that in case the treaty is not continued, their interest will be threatened, as well as that of the government, by a great number of persons being thrown out of employment. The American citizens were desirous of having an American man-of-war about the islands until the question was definitely settled, and Capt. Erbin states that he is of the opinion that a war vessel would be a great protection to the American interests in case of difficulty.

APPLICANTS FOR HILL'S PLACE.

The following named persons have applications on file in the Treasury Department, for the position of Supervising Architect, to succeed Hill: E. E. Myers, Michigan, recommended by the Michigan Congressional delegation; John Frazier, Washington, recommended by Senators Cameron of Pennsylvania and Van Wyck of Nebraska; Gordon P. Cummings, of Philadelphia, and J. P. Law, Washington. The last named is at present in charge of the draftsmen's division of the architect's office.

CINCINNATI PUBLIC BUILDING.

Contracts for plumbing and materials for the public building at Cincinnati were awarded to-day. The successful bidders are all residents of Cincinnati.

TRIUMPHANT THIEVES.

They Succeed in Getting Away With a Detroit Jeweler's Stock.

DETROIT, September 24.—It was discovered during the day yesterday that the jewelry store of J. Rolshaven had been robbed the night before of some $15,000 worth of goods, as near as can be estimated by a hasty inventory of the stock. The work was done by experienced burglars, and excites some astonishment, as the store is on Woodward avenue, the leading business street of the city. The thieves attempted to crack the safe, but after considerable time evidently spent on it, gave it up. A large amount of the most valuable goods thus escaped.

A STILL HOUSE DESTROYED.

The Explosion of a Still Causes a Heavy Loss—Two Men Injured.

HUNTER'S POINT, N. Y., September 24.—While being charged, about 4:30 this morning, a large still in Gaff, Fleischmann & Co.'s distillery at Blissville, exploded, setting fire to the still building, which burned to the ground. John Snedeker, a stillman, was fearfully burned, and Internal Revenue Officer Cook sustained severe injuries by jumping out of a window. Damage $30,000.

BIG GUNS OF ARKANSAS.

The Governor, State Officials and Editors Off for Louisville.

Special Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, September 24.—The Governor, State officials and Arkansas editors, 200 in number, the invited guests of the Memphis and Little Rock Railroad, leave at 3:30 p. m., on a special train, via Memphis, for the Louisville Exposition to participate in the festivities on the Arkansas day.

A Sunday Hail Storm.

MADISON, IND., September 24.—A Courier special states that a hail storm swept over the valley of the Ohio yesterday afternoon from Carrollton to the vicinity of Lawrenceburg, covering the ground from two to four inches with hail and ruining the crops standing in the fields. Nothing similar to this storm was ever before experienced in this region.

Death of a Fast Trotter.

KALAMAZOO, MICH., September 24.—Polka Dot, the trotting mare, owned by Wm Hototop of this place, who made a record of 1:28 on the Jackson track, burned at Pittsburg yesterday, with Jimmy McDermott, her rubber. Five thousand dollars was recently offered and refused for her.

A Michigan Robbery.

KALAMAZOO, MICH., September 24.—C. W. Edsell's residence at Otsego was burglarized some time since Saturday of several hundred dollars worth of silver ware and other valuables. The family is absent on a visit. The exact amount of the loss is not known.

Twelve Years in the Pen.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 24.—The trial of David Fraley, the alleged moonshiner, for the murder of H. F. Walker, the revenue officer, in Stanley County on February 8, was concluded at Concord Saturday. He was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to twelve years in the penitentiary.

Defying a Supreme Court.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., September 24.—A demand was made to-day upon Wm. Sprague, under an order of the Supreme Court, for the possession of the Quidneck Company's property, but Sprague refused to surrender, declaring that he did not recognize the authority.

Entertained by Gen. Hancock.

NEW YORK, September 24.—The Corean Embassy returned from Boston this morning. To-day the whole party visited the Brooklyn Navy Yard and Governor's Island, where a greater part of the day was spent. Gen. Hancock entertained the visitors.

Clothiers Fail in Business.

NEW YORK, September 24.—An assignment for the benefit of their creditors was filed to-day in the County Clerk's office by the firm of Siedenbach, Schwab & Co., clothiers, to Wm. Sulzbacher. They give preferences amounting to $118,297.

A Counterfeiter's Outfit.

WASHINGTON, September 24.—The Secret Service Bureau of the Treasury Department is informed of the capture at Duluth of plates for the printing of counterfeit $10 silver certificates and $10 notes on the Bank of Montreal.

A Postmaster Arrested.

NATCHEZ, MISS., September 24.—Postmaster H. H. Meng, of Vidalia, La., was arrested to-day, charged with robbing registered mail. Meng acknowledged the crime.

Dad's Dollars.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 24.—The issue of standard silver dollars for the week ending September 22 was $558,499. Corresponding period last year, $483,498.

Striking Weavers.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., September 24.—A considerable number of weavers in the Lorrain Mills at Pawtucket, struck to-day on account of a reduction of wages.

EXPLODING ROCKETS.

Burning of a Rocket Factory at Woolwich, England.

Missiles of War Thrown with Terrific Force for Miles—China Treats the French Government Memorandum Coolly—Land League Meetings in Ireland.

LONDON, September 24.—An explosion at Woolwich caused a fire in the main building, which, including the laboratory building, was destroyed within half an hour after the fire broke out. It contained an immense number of war rockets, which were filled with destructive missiles. The latter flew in all directions, many being projected to and falling upon the other side of the Thames. The explosives caused a feraful destruction of property throughout the town and in the surrounding district. The fire was extinguished at noon, when the rockets ceased their explosions. Old soldiers declared the explosion of the rockets during the fire was as frightful as if occurring in an actual siege. Two bodies of the victims of the explosion have been found. Some of the war rockets projected a distance of five miles. One of them went through the wall of an arsenal and another struck the artillery barracks.

Rockets fell in Erith, Elsham, Charlton and Ilford. One of them plunged into a school for infants at Plumpstead; another entered a draper's shop in Woolwich, and still another wrecked a grocery store. There was the wildest panic at Woolwich, but no loss of life with the exception of the two persons mentioned, and who were employed in the arsenal. First reports of the fatalities are exaggerated. The principal damage is confined to the rocket factory, which will involve a loss of £2,000

ARRIVAL OF MRS. CAREY.

LONDON, September 24.—The steamer Garth Castle, from Capetown, with Mrs. Carey and other witnesses to the murder of James Carey, has arrived at Plymouth. The detectives who have Mrs. Carey in charge will not allow her to be seen.

ADVISED TO BRING SUIT.

LONDON, September 24.—Shaw, the British missionary who was subjected to so many indignities by the French at Madagascar, landed to-day at Plymouth from the steamer Garth Castle. He states that during the illness of the late Pakingham, the English Consul at Tamatave, he discharged many of the duties of the consulate, which fact tended to increase the dislike towards him of the French Admiral, Pierre. Shaw has been advised to file a claim for $10,000 damages against the French Government. He hopes to return to Madagascar to resume his missionary labors.

A LETTER FROM HENRY STANLEY.

LONDON, September 24.—A letter from Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, was read to-day before the British Association for the Advancement of Science, in which he urges that Great Britain should proclaim a protectorate over the Congo country.

BROKEN CABLE.

LONDON, September 24.—The cable connecting Europe with Brazil is broken between the island of St. Vincent and Pernambuco.

France.

LONDON, September 24.—A dispatch from Paris to the Times says: "The reply of the Government of China to the memorandum proposals by the French Government for the settlement of the Tonquin difficulty, which was telegraped to Pekin by Marquis Tseng, has just been received. It is said the response favors the theory of a division of the neutral zone of Tonquin."

It is not likely that Franch will reply favorably to this counter proposition. Everything, however, points to the ultimate favorable solution of the questions at issue, and there will be a friendly intervention solicited by both nations.

Ireland.

DUBLIN, September 24.—The meetings of the Irish National League, which were permitted to be held at Bandon, near Cork, and at Tallow, County Waterford, yesterday, passed off in an orderly manner. There was a government reporter present at each gathering.

GROANS FOR THE QUEEN.

DUBLIN, September 24.—Notwithstanding the proclamation of the Government forbidding the holding of meetings in Counties Clare and Limerick yesterday, several thousand persons, headed by a priest, gathered in Milltown, Malbay, County Clare, and attempted to hold an Irish National League meeting. The large police force present prevented the organization of the meeting, a magistrate read the prohibitory proclamation, and the crowd dispersed, uttering groans for the Queen and shouting "God save Ireland."

Spain.

GIBRALTAR, September 24.—The Governor has issued an order removing the Quarantine restriction upon vessels arriving from Eastern ports where cholera has been prevailing.

Italy.

ROME, September 24.—The Vatican has authorized the Catholic Bishops who were expelled from Prussia to open negotiations with the Prussian Government for their return to their pastorates.

ROME, September 24.—The Moniteur de Rome learns that the negotiations between the Vatican and France have reached a satisfactory conclusion. The French Government has restored the suppressed stipends to the Catholic clergy and given formal assurances of the most pacific intentions towards the Holy See.

Africa.

PARIS, September 24.—Hana's Agency has published a letter from Lisbon, in which it is asserted that the English Commissioner has been charged with the duty of acquiring for Great Britain the territory obtained by Stanley on the upper Congo.

Local Political Notes.

The Democratic City Central Committee will meet this evening at their headquarters to determine whether candidates for School Directors shall be nominated at primary elections or in mass meetings.

Dr. Vastine is a Democratic candidate for school director in the Tenth Ward.

Mayor Ewing stated this morning that he would not issue a proclamation calling a special election to fill the place of President of the Board of Assessors until assured by Mr. Hubiltzelle, the Recorder of Votes, that everything is in readiness.

The politicians are now engaged in speculating upon the Governor's appointments for Police Commissioner. The general impression seems to be that H. D. Cleveland, the superintendent of the Cass Avenue Street Car Line, and Joseph Robertson, manager of the People's Theater, will be the favored pair, but nothing is positively known.

The Bridal Bulletin.

The following marriage licenses were issued to-day: Henry Otke to Miss Mary Johnson; John Dandridge to Miss Alice Ridgley; Frank Reiss to Miss Josephine Schillert; Adam J. Peterman to Miss Mary M. Rudrof, and Fredrick A. Bell to Miss Annie Withers.

OLIVER P. GOODING.

He is Appointed Police Commissioner, vice Dan Kerwin.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., September 24.—Oliver P. Gooding is appointed Police Commissioner, vice Kerwin.

Who Gooding Is.

O. P. Gooding is a lawyer by profession, but of limited practice. He is a familiar figure about the Laclede Hotel, where politicians most do congregate, and has an office at 620 Chestnut street. Three years ago he endeavored to enter the lecture field, appearing before the Missouri Legislature with an essay on the government of the future. In 1880 he had Congressional aspirations which panned out badly. Some three years ago he got his name into the papers as the bearer of a challenge from a fiery young Congressman to an editor.

SALE OF BOOTHS.

Auctioning Off the Refreshment Stands at the Fair Grounds.

"Take that horse's head out of the way and let me see that red-headed Dutchman—three fifty—five sixty-five—bid up there, sorrel-top," cried Mr. P. S. Lanham this morning as he was selling the first booth at the Fair Grounds. There were about 1,500 persons present when Mr. Green, president of the Association, mounted the seat of the auctioneer's buggy and announced the terms of the sale. No booth would be sold, he said, for less than $150. Fifty must be paid down at the time of the sale, and the balance by 2 o'clock Wednesday, or the booth would be resold and the deposit forfeited. Five tickets would be allowed to each booth, and those who bought them could open up and begin business to-day if they saw fit. He also said that the grounds would not be closed this week, as had been stated by the morning papers. They would be open every day, and the Fair would commence on Sunday instead of Monday, and continue until the following Monday. If the weather is fair Sunday he expects to have music at the ground. The license of parties selling liquors would remain the same as it was last year. They would have no extra State or city license to pay, but only the United States license, which was small. He concluded by saying that the association had expended about $60,000 on the grounds since last year, and as the crowd promises to be larger this year than ever before, he expected the booths to sell for higher prices. Mr. Lanham then took the stand and the bidding commenced. Booth No. 22, on the main entrance to the amphitheater, was the first on the list, and the buyer had the privilege of taking three at the same price. It was knocked down to Mr. J. T. McCullough for $385. He also took No. 91. The sale progressed until No. 57 was reached. Then Mr. Lanham went back to the right of the main entrance and began at No. 1. The following is a list of the booths sold up to 1 o'clock, with the names of the purchasers and the prices obtained:

1—Torrence Martin	$325
2—Charles Lohman	315
3—Charles Lohman	315

The sales last year aggregated $21,243, and it expected they will approximate $26,000 this year.

As we go to press it is learned that the sales are completed and the total amount realized was $23,700.

Dismissed.

The charge of Sabbath-breaking against Mr. W. M. Houser, of the Globe Publishing Company, was dismissed to-day.

A charge of betraying a girl was dismissed on the evidence to-day when Simon Dorndorf was examined before Judge Noonan.

ABOUT TOWN.

EIGHTEEN burial permits were issued by the Clerk of the Board of Health this morning.

CITY collections reported to-day are: Licenses, $5,281 21, of which $3,396 15 were from dramshops, and taxes, $13,158 34.

THE Lindell Hotel employes are making extensive arrangements for a grand ball to be given at Druids' Hall, Ninth and Market streets, next Friday night.

ON motion of Judge George A. Madill Mr. Robert H. Payne, a graduate of the St. Louis Law School, was enrolled as a member of the United States Circuit Court Bar this morning.

THE last will and testament of the late John F. Obergunner, was admitted to probate this morning. The testator bequeathes all his property to his widow, Maria Obergunner, who is appointed executrix.

THE following appeared in the POST-DISPATCH Saturday afternoon:

"No rent to pay—Thirteen rooms during the fair week. Inquire at Wm. G. Heger's, 109 Chestnut."

A reporter's curiosity being aroused he called at the place named and ascertained that Mr. Heger kept a restaurant and eating saloon, over which were the thirteen rooms to be let. He said they were unfurnished and any parties bringing their own beds, cots, etc., could have the rooms free of charge. The only remuneration he expects is what he will derive from his restaurant and bar.

EDUCATIONAL.

Interview with a Mexican Educator—American Influence.

A reporter of the POST-DISPATCH on meeting Professor De Leon Del Gardo of Queretaro, Mexico, at the Polytechnic this morning, asked:

"What are the prospects for the development of the public school system in Mexico?"

"The schools of Mexico at the present time are generally of a parochial character. The wealthier classes go to the States for their higher education. There is, however, a sentiment universal among the educated classes for the establishment of a public school system such as you have in St. Louis."

"What are the difficulties in your way for forming a public school system?"

"The general Government has never realized the importance until recently of giving financial aid to the support of public schools. Our legislators are, however, beginning to comprehend that the fundamental principles of success underlying the prosperity of Mexico depend upon the establishment of first-class educational centers, such as I have found upon investigation here in your city."

"Are the American residents in Mexico aiding you in your efforts to form the public school system?"

"Nearly every enterprising American that comes to my own city, or to the City of Mexico, is generally the first to advocate the public school system. We find, however, that the educated Germans are among the first and foremost in the upbuilding of the movement. There is a general inclination among the young people of Mexico to learn the English language, as I find in the States a desire to learn the Spanish language. This is a self-evident indication of the intermingling of the higher American civilization in Mexican society."

Silk Stocking Central Committee.

The Silk Stocking City Central Committee met at 3 p. m. to-day at F. C. P. Tiedemann's office, on Fifth and Market streets. The session will last a couple of hours, but it is generally known that arrangements will be made to hold a convention of that wing of the party represented by the committee for the purpose of nominating candidates for assessor of the School Board. It will be remembered that by resolution the Executive Committee of the "Hoodlum" or Filley City Central Committee was directed to confer with the Silk Stockings' Executive Committee with reference to joint action in regard to the filling of these vacancies. This resolution was forwarded to Chairman Andre, of the Silk Stockings, at noon to-day. Several members of the committee stated before the meeting that no action would be taken on this matter, and that the communication from the "Hoodlums" would be passed over without any notice. It is also pretty certain that a resolution will be introduced in which the course of the seven members of the Council will be condemned, while there will probably be no direct indorsement of Mayor Ewing, as was done at the meeting of the committee representing the other wing of the Republicans. A resolution has been drafted to that effect, and will read in the form of an address to voters. It is quite certain that the Silk Stockings will have little to do with the Hoodlums, and that separate conventions will, in all likelihood, be held.

Astonished at the World.

Mr. Thos. S. Rudd, who has just returned from New York, said to a POST-DISPATCH reporter this morning that the marvelous success of the New York WORLD was the principal topic of conversation in the journalistic circles of that city. "I new saw anything like the sensation that paper has produced," said he. "I myself was amazed by it, and last week I took the pains to inquire at news-stands how much the sale of the paper had increased since it had passed into the hands of its present owners. At many of the stands ten times as much as now where one was sold formerly, and at none did I hear that their sales had not trebled. The New York people like the breezy style of the WORLD, and I'm very much mistaken if it doesn't revolutionize journalism there. Everybody likes the paper, and takes it because it is a success. There was quite a panic among the WORLD reporters Friday morning owing to a rumor that the entire force of the POST-DISPATCH, editors, reporters and all, were to be transferred to New York. I heard the story two or three times before I left."

The School Board Election.

An election will be held on the 23d of October for members to represent the First, Fifth, Sixth, Tenth, Twelfth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Twenty-first, Twenty-fourth and Twenty-seventh Wards of the city.

At the last meeting of the board a committee was appointed to consolidate the city election precincts into convenient school districts. That committee has completed the work of consolidation, but have not yet settled on all the voting places. The list of voting places will be finished to-morrow. The names of the judges and clerks will be appointed at the meeting of the committee on Monday, October 8, the day before the regular board meeting, and will be reported for confirmation by the board on the 9th.

Jailer Siegmund's Clever Work.

To-day the Grand Jury returned a complaint against Henry Williams as "not a true bill." There were two Henry Williamses in jail, and in "discharging" the prisoner against whom there was no evidence he got the wrong Henry Williams by the ear and left the innocent one in jail. About an hour later Jailer Siegmund discovered the mistake, and without knowing the man he wanted, he started out, and after pedestrianizing about town ran across a familiar face at Third and Washington avenue, and took him back to jail, when the right Henry Williams was discharged. It is proposed to put Jailer Siegmund in charge of the detective force, since his display of so much ability.

The Belleville Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury returned this morning the following indictments:

Mace Jones, Richard Lindsey and Ellis Rhodes, charged with attempting to kill W. H. McLean, the night watchman of the Wabash Railroad, last July. George Howard, petit larceny; Chas. Holt, two charges, one of larceny and one for obtaining property under false pretences.

The Belleville National Bank has entered suit against Mr. Hucke, who indorsed for the firm of Reuss & Co. Mr. Hucke indorsed to the extent of $33,000.

New Corn.

A car of new corn, the first to arrive here of this year's crop, was received to-day by S. W. Cobb & Co., from S. A. Brown & Co., of Neodosha, Kan. The quality of this corn was right good and it probably would have graded No. 2 had it been dry. As it was it inspected "new." The car was auctioned off at the call and sold to Wm. Laeger at the high price of forty-five cents per bushel. The firm sending this corn has for the past four years been getting the first new corn to this market and all was consigned to S. W. Cobb & Co. The first car of new corn last year was received here on September 28.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION, CLOSING AT 1 P. M.

It is said that India will be able to export 20 to 25 million cwt. of wheat during the current season.——John O. Mellon, the Exchange Statistician, posts the following on 'Change: "The stocks of wheat and flour in the six principal British ports September 1, 1883, were 22,442,523 bu: on September 1, 1882, were 12,333,043 bu; excess of stocks in 1883, 10,099,480 bu; less decreased amount on passage 3,136,000 bu; total excess in 1883, 6,963,480 bu, which is equal to less than two weeks' consumptive requirements." But if the total excess as Mr. Mellon figures out is not equal to two weeks' food wants, does not the 22,400,000 bu in stock count for something?——The bulls tried to spring "war rumors" on the grain market to-day, on the strength of a rather lurid cable in this morning's papers, but these 'war rumors" fell very flat.——The exports from New Orleans to-day were 188,000 bu corn for Dublin, and 68,986 bu and 2,328 sks corn for Falmouth. Ocean rates quoted at 5d per bushel.——Letters from different sections of Missouri indicate it is not injury by frost that is feared for the corn crop, but that the drought has been so protracted that serious apprehensions are felt regarding its effects upon corn. This dry weather has also retarded the breaking of the ground for wheat planting.——Shepard & Peacocke of Chicago wire C. H. Wall: "This October corn may be in a hole. Hustis & Haseltine of New York are said to have large lines there, and about 6,000,000 here through Baker, Dows, Field and others. If any truth, the grand squeeze will probably be in New York."——It is also said that W. T. Baker holds a million bushels of the cash corn in Chicago, and that a buyer for Europe, the South or New England points can get all he wants from him, but Baker will not sell to any one who intends shipping to New York.——The discrepancy between the shipments of grain and the elevator deliveries as posted on 'Change does not seem to be understood by the dealers. The elevators report to the Exchange daily the amount of grain ordered out of elevators the previous day. The figures of the various elevators are aggregated by the secretary and posted for information as to the movement of grain at the elevators. The various railroads and steamboats and the barge lines report each morning the amount shipped out the previous day and the aggregate of these is posted as the shipments of the previous day and show correctly the movement and the direction in which the property is being forwarded. These two reports, viz., shipments and elevator deliveries can never agree as posted each day, for several reasons.

First. The elevator deliveries do not show the total shipments, as at times grain is forwarded from track or from store that does not go into elevators. Again, grain, and especially corn boats, are often sacked in elevators and delivered to boats and barges, constituting shipments which by the elevator companies are reported as city deliveries, being actually delivered to teams and hauled away, the elevator companies not knowing the destination. Again, it is the custom of elevators as soon as the warehouse receipts are presented at the office to issue an order on the elevator for the grain, and to consider the grain as shipped, and the next morning to report the amount as delivered. But often it is two or three days, perhaps, before the cars or the barges are received and the grain actually delivered out of the elevators. The railroads and boats only report the shipments when the property is received and forwarded, so that while the elevator very properly reports the grain delivered as it is to all intents and purposes, so far as the elevator is concerned, it has not actually left the bins. With this explanation it will readily be seen that although the figures of shipments and elevator deliveries do not agree, they are both correctly reported, one being for grain ordered out of elevator and the other being actual shipments as reported by the railroads and by the boats.

Henry T. Kneeland & Co., of New York, telegraph Grier Brothers: "Walker, the statistician, gives the result of rye crop this year in Europe as a deficiency of over 200,000,000 bushels. This result, with shortage of 80,000,000 bushels of wheat to fill a year's requirements warrants, confidence in present prices of wheat, and if statistical position is once understood American producers will warrant restriction of deliveries until the markets overtake present supplies, when what America has to spare can be marketed at an important advance over prices now ruling.——It is believed by some that speculation has once more taken hold of wheat for an advance. America has several times attempted to force Europe to take her wheat at America's own prices, but never yet has been able to do so. Will she be able to do so now, when Europe is well supplied for some time to come, has a fair crop already harvested, and with the supplies piling up steadily in this country?——The local crowd of speculators have turned very bullish on wheat; that is the majority has, and there is some pretty heavy buying going on now for the long side. It is believed that St. Louis bought some wheat last spring with the idea that it was going right up to $1 50, but was rather badly disappointed in the final result.——The first car of corn of this year's growth was received to-day by S. W. Cobb & Co., from L. A. Brown & Co., of Neodosha, Kan. The corn inspected "new," was of good quality and would undoubtedly have inspected No. 2 had it been dry enough. This car was sold at auction to Wm. Largers at 45c per bushel. L. A. Brown & Co., have sent the first car of new corn to this market for four years past.

Wheat futures advanced largely to-day. Public cables reported a better tone and private cables were firm, but there was no change for the better in price. In Chicago and New York there was said to be some export demand and there was an active demand, both from shorts and longs. Latter were buying steady and exhibited a good deal of confidence. There were not so many sellers as there have been and this decreased the offers to sell, so that buyers at times became urgent and there were sharp advances, but the market was extremely unsettled, and the feeling nervous and uncertain. The close was at advances of 1½@2⅝ over Saturday's latest rates. Corn was dull, weak and lower, with more sellers than buyers until late, when, chiefly through sympathy with wheat, prices stiffened up some, but late were easy, with sellers at the top rates. Oats were strong and in demand at higher rates. Buyers far outnumbered sellers, and their wants were not near supplied. The whole feeling was one of strength and prices went up ¼@¾ above Saturday's close. Cash grades of wheat were higher, and met an active demand. Cash corn and oats also advanced.

Cotton.

The various markets for spot cotton to-day were without any new or interesting features, New York being steady at 10¼, with small sales, amounting only to 403 bales. New Orleans was easy but quotably unchanged at 10 5-16, with sales of 450 bales, and Liverpool dull, but also unchanged. Locally there was nothing new to report, the demand appeared very light, and no sales were reported up to 2:30 p. m., while values were steady at the same rates as were current Saturday. Futures at all points met with a setback, but ruled steadier as the day advanced and prices took a turn upwards. At Liverpool a decline of 1 to 3-64d was noted, and remained at this during the day. New York was marked by a drop of 5 to 8 points at the opening, but at 2:30 p.m. a gain of 2 to 4 points was had, and the tone at this time was dull but steady with fair trading. New Orleans started out dull at a decline from Saturday's close of 1 to 2 points in a few months, the majority remaining unchanged. From this prices worked up a little, but only to react again, although they were still better by 3 or 4 points than at the opening,

CATTLE—The trade this morning opened in a quiet manner, and was remarkable only for its lack of interesting features. The supply on sale was very small, even for a Monday, and was made up almost entirely of cattle left over from Saturday and the day before. There was no really good amount among these, the bulk of the offerings consisting of mixed lots of both native and range cattle, which were taken by retailers and butchers for local consumption at about the same rates as were current the closing days of last week. There was only a light inquiry for shipping grades, it being somewhat early for Eastern buyers to put in an appearance, and the very light movement of the day was on local account only. We quote:

HOGS—A good demand marked the early opening of the market, and under the active operations of the various classes of buyers who were represented, the moderate supply on sale was soon reduced. The arrivals were mostly of a heavy description and they brought about the same figures as prevailed during the closing days of last week, butchers paying from $5@5 15 and packers $4 70@5, one lot of really fancy bringing as high as $5 15. The demand for Yorkers was not very heavy but was just about equal to the supply. These kind were not selling as well as on last Friday, but then that was to be expected, as buyers on that day were "sparring" quite freely with each other and salesmen seeing their opportunity ran prices up. The range this morning was from $5@5 10 and about everything was taken at these figures. Skips, etc., were quoted at $3 75@4 25.

TEN PAGES.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1883.

THE James Boys party has disappeared. Its organs are mute. It has not even an epitaph.

THE City Council will sit on the nomination of EVANS this week; they will also sit on EVANS.

THE mystery of the Police Board deepens. Every one on the inside declares that there is no mystery.

THE POST-DISPATCH to-day is a seven-column, ten-page paper. Telegraph and local news will be found in the supplement, which is edited on the same lofty plane of thought as the rest of the paper.

THE Globe-Democrat's special says that Secretary Folger will not appoint an architect to succeed Hill as Supervising Architect of the Treasury. If Hill and Mullett are architects we don't want an architect there.

THE Times and Tribune of New York are now running at reduced rates. Their failure to reduce prices six months ago is another illustration of the familiar truth that a man's foresight is seldom as accurate as his hindsight.

AMONG the amusements of the week not advertised in our amusement columns will be the circus at the City Hall, with all the old attractions. The Ring-master, the Clown, the Trick-mule will appear as usual. In fact there will be no change of programme.

IF the Governor should appoint Mr. ROBERTSON Police Commissioner, Mr. ROBERTSON would of course do the proper thing in return, and Governor CRITTENDEN would see a mighty fine line of dramatic representations whenever he wished to, without its costing him a cent.

VISITORS returning from Baltimore report that the Oriole procession was a marvel of good taste and elegance, but that the effect was spoiled by the inadequate lighting of the floats. We mention this for the benefit of the Veiled Prophets and also for the Trades Procession. Let there be light.

THE Congregational ministers of St. Louis have passed a resolution expressing their unwillingness to give news to evil-minded and irreligious editors who publish newspapers on Sunday. We publish a Sunday paper, but, as we publish it the day before, we escape their censure. The POST-DISPATCH is the only paper in St. Louis which combines piety and enterprise.

LOUISVILLE has an institution on which it bases high hopes, and for which every one has reason to wish success. This is a school of pharmacy for women. It was incorporated early in the present year, and it will take its place among the regular medical schools of this winter. There is more common sense and equal justice in establishing such an institution than in securing woman suffrage.

WE are assured that the reception and entertainment of Lord Chief Justice COLERIDGE in this city will be entirely in the hands of the Bar. This is as it should be. Any disparaging estimates his Lordship may have formed of the American lawyer from his experience with the Bar of Boston and New York will be corrected when he encounters the aggregation of legal talent of which St. Louis is justly proud.

THE Humane Society of St. Louis is all torn up over the great question whether a fox-hunt is cruelty to animals. We recommend the example of the Humane Society at Newport, which at the opening of the fox-hunting season went around and struck all the fox-hunters for big subscriptions and then kept a judicious silence. As soon as the season was over the society held a meeting and severely denounced fox-hunting.

IT will show a strange lack of enterprise among the prominent and wealthy Catholics of St. Louis if they allow so distinguished a prelate as Monsignor CAPEL to visit this country without seeing St. Louis. It is not the Catholics alone but all classes and creeds, who would be delighted to have an opportunity of hearing this eminent divine, and the POST-DISPATCH makes the suggestion that a proper invitation should be extended to him.

WHAT does the New York Herald mean by speaking of the withdrawal from circulation of the notes of five dollars and under? If this was a government of the people instead of a rich man's government, it would keep the small notes in circulation by giving us crisp and new notes instead of the dingy and dirty rags it compels us to pass from hand to hand. But we presume it is too much to ask our Treasury dudes to do for the people what the Bank of England does for the holders of its five pound notes.

NOBODY would think of matching ex-Gov. SPRAGUE against Boston's champion, but his prowess seems equal to the task of holding the army and navy of Rhode Island at bay. For years has he held Canonchet with his little shotgun, in defiance of all attempts of State courts and Sheriffs' posses to oust him, and their recent attempts to dispossess him of the Quidneck factory have been similarly defied and defeated. Poor "Little Rhody" is plainly the under dog in that fight, and Gov. BUTLER should send SULLIVAN over to protect her.

NO DOUBT the closing of the Main street depot during Fair week will strike a great many of our country visitors as a hardship, but it would be a much greater hardship if any disaster should happen through the attempt to accommodate special trains and excursions with thousands of passengers on a platform which is hardly adequate for light local traffic. It would be impossible to manage the Fair week travel in the limited space available at Main street, and it is not worth while discussing the question now. A passenger depot at Main street is badly needed, but we are not likely to get it, as long as the gentleman who controls the bridge considers the Twelfth street cattle sheds good enough for a Union Depot.

THE RICH MAN'S PRESIDENT.

When President ARTHUR commences his round of dinner eating at Newport he naturally begins with a dinner at VANDERBILT'S villa.

There is an eminent fitness and propriety in this.

VANDERBILT, at Newport, represents the triumph of money in society.

ARTHUR, in the White House, represents the triumph of money in politics.

VANDERBILT represents the corporate monopoly interests, whose motto is, "the public be damned."

ARTHUR represents the political monopoly interest, which says in its every act, "the people be damned."

When ARTHUR and VANDERBILT clink their glasses they understand each other. The money power establishes an alliance, rounds out the collar which it proposes to fasten about the neck of the people.

ARTHUR is not the people's President; he is the rich man's President.

THE NIHILISTS AGAIN.

The Nihilists have warned Count TOLSTOI that his days are numbered, a warning that has more significance in Russia than elsewhere, for in the dominions of the Tsar the old rule is reversed and threatened men do not live long. The count is Minister of the Interior and he has made himself obnoxious to the Revolution by his energy and resolution in the war against the Nihilists. The survival of this anarchist society in spite of the efforts made for its suppression is a remarkable fact. It preaches political chaos and it finds brave and intelligent men and women ready to throw their lives away gaily in its use. Its martyrology reads like a page of early Christian history, so devoted are the victims, so ready for death, so steadfast under torture. Heroism of the very highest type have these people displayed, truth and fidelity unparalleled in modern times. But with these virtues, that challenge our admiration, they have cloaked the most dastardly of crimes, assassination. And yet we forget the baseness of their ends in our horror over the stories that have come from the Russian dungeons and slaughter-pens.

Of course, in the light of Western civilization, the Nihilists are all wrong. The evangel of destruction for which they are laying down their lives, means the loss of all that humanity has won since the dark ages. They desire to involve government, law, religion and society in one common ruin, and to this aim all members of the society agree. When that is done they will talk about reconstruction. Unfortunately all the reformers are united in pulling down the present system, and are utterly at variance on the new one that is to replace it.

In Russia, a pure despotism has ground the people into desperation. A man has none of the rights of manhood, and the revolt which he naturally joins is officered entirely by the Nihilists; it is the only protest against the Tsar which has proven its faith by its works. There is no middle course open; one must be either the abject vassal of the Romanoff or an anarchist. The leaders of the revolution are hampered by none of the prejudices that would stay the arms of other men. The Tsar's weapon is the gallows and the platoon of rifles; they have seized the resources of civilization and fight with dynamite, the "black jelly" and poison. The social compact they have thrown off, and their only duty is to harm the enemy as much as possible. To their credit they do not whimper, they do not turn State's evidence, they do not cringe and beg for their lives when the law throttles them. They die mutely like wolves. Such people have in them the fibre of which success is woven. The Tsar can order delicate high-born ladies to be whipped naked before his regiments; he can send them to violation and death on the skeleton-dotted road to Siberia; he can electrise witnesses, or torture them with more ancient and respectable engines; he can wound and maim and kill, but he cannot conquer. The French revolution was not made of half as substantial material as is the Russian; the tale of wrongs, of rapine, of murder that Russian history records is unparalleled in the world. We shall have in the end a new Reign of Terror which will differ from the French one as the relentless, merciless Sclav differs from the volatile Gaul.

PIERCE having flinched, the Bay State Republicans are now trying to extract some encouragement from the fact that the Plymouth Free Press, a former supporter of Gov. BUTLER, has turned against him. The influence of that paper was estimated by its editor last year at the low price of $800, and in a letter submitting to the Democratic committee a demand for that amount he wrote this to a member of the committee:

> If they do not take some favorable action upon it, shall surely close a bargain with the Republicans Monday, or Tuesday at the latest, and run my chances as regards future results. Yours in haste. (Signed) D. W. ANDREWS.

The price at which he closed a bargain with the Republicans this year is said to be $600.

REPUBLICANS are exercised over the object and outcome of that National Convention of Colored Citizens in Louisville. They yesterday undertook to break up a meeting called in Columbus, Ohio, to appoint delegates, and succeeded so far as to split it and organize a part of it as a local campaign club, while the other part went ahead and sent delegates to Louisville. The fact is that a great many colored voters are becoming too well informed to regard themselves any longer as so much "captured and abandoned property," belonging now to the Republican party. They feel that it has been pretty well paid for all it did for them, and that if their freedom is to be anything more than a mere change of taskmasters, they must some time or other begin to look out for themselves and apply their political influence where it will do them the most good. But for their grateful and unrewarded support that party would have been overwhelmed and disbanded long ago. They know this, and know also that their share of the spoils has been so ridiculously small that it exposes them to the perennial contempt of all other classes of voters. Some of them are beginning to catch the idea that a big defeat of the Republican party would be the dawn of a new era of political and social importance for them.

The False Duke.
From the New York Times.

It is possible that some young women who have been spending the season at Long Branch will be saddened by the announcement in to-day's Times that the Duke of Newcastle is making the tour of the English Lake country, and, therefore, cannot have been paying attentions to them at Long Branch. His spurious Grace has not cut much of a figure in the newspapers, but that may be only by reason of his own astuteness in forbearing to invite exposure and in putting in his work on the verandas in strict privacy. It was unwise in him, however, to personate a duke, since dukes are limited in number and known by right and title to many persons. A common baron or trivial vis count would have been almost equally impressive and much less dangerous. Neither the Atlantic Cable nor the increasing freedom of international intercourse seems to suppress the sham nobleman, and it is a question what is to be done about him. Every watering-place might be supplied at no tremendous expense with a photograph album of the peerage on the principle of the Rogues' Gallery, with which the pretender could be confronted. But it is desirable that American young women, and especially American mothers, should have some recipe by which to tell a real duke. We may remark, for their benefit, that the frequent blasting of one's heyes and frequent calls for off-an-off are not strictly ducal habits, as certain Western paragraphers do vainly talk, and that it is not absolutely necessary that a duke should have one eye glazed. The real duke may probably be known by being a much less interesting and agreeable person than the sham duke, and especially by an extreme indisposition to put himself out for anybody.

Thurber's Testimony.
From the New York World.

One of the greatest difficulties with which reformers have to deal, Mr. Thurber said, are "the representatives in Congress and State Legislatures in the pay of railroad and other corporations." In the last Congress, Mr. Thurber asserted, there were 264 lawyers, a majority of whom were retained by corporations, or were directly or indirectly influenced by others in legislation in the interest of the corporations.

Mr. Thurber spoke a simple and glaring truth. The big corporations and other moneyed interests buy up Senators and Representatives before election and take mortgages on administrations. The legislators they do not own before election they purchase afterwards. That is the reason the laws are made for the privileged classes and not for the people.

The history of the Republican party as told by Dorsey in the campaign of 1880 has been its history in elections for years, and is its history in the election of this year. Moneyed aid to Presidents and legislators before election and bribes after election make our laws what they are, and have placed the heel of wealthy corporate monopolies on the necks of the people.

Frank's Peers.
From the New York World.

Under the head of "A Democratic Probability," the Tribune copies from one of its exchanges the giddy observation that "Colonel Frank James may yet represent Missouri in the United States Senate." If he does he will find himself in the company of some distinguished gentlemen who may have never robbed railroad trains, but who have helped to appropriate some railroads in their entirety.

Rather Curious.
From the Sedalia Democrat.

THE POST-DISPATCH has editorially vindicated Col. John O'Day on the charges preferred against him by Col. Carpenter, but proceeds to re-indict him on the anomalous position he holds as Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee and chief attorney of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad. It does look rather curious like.

Tar and Feathers.
From the New York World.

Connecticut is a land of steady habits, and gentlemen who treat their wives in an unchivalrous way are promptly tarred and feathered. The feathers are raised in Connecticut, but the tar is imported from the South, where more or less barbarism is thought to prevail all the year round.

SAYS the Atlanta Constitution: "The Supreme Court of New York travels over the railroads on free passes. This being the case there is no reason why the entire New York public shouldn't travel on free passes. We submit this theory with due diffidence.

IT is said that Robinson, the candidate of the Massachusetts Republicans for Governor, is as cold a man as Charles Francis Adams. Mr. Butler, however, will probably "warm" him.

MR. ROBINSON, the Republican candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, is mentioned in the Boston Journal as a man who, "reaching home on Saturday night after a long session of Congress, will be found at the Sunday school in the morning. And if you hear a good bass voice in the choir," adds the Journal, "you'll be sure to know that Robinson is there." General Butler does not go to Sunday school.

THE Philadelphia Press says that Henry L. Pierce has disappointed Massachusetts and the Republican party by his refusal to run as Governor, and he has unquestionably increased Ben. Butler's chances of re-election. To its mind the most disheartening side of the action taken by Mr. Pierce is that he is better fitted than most men to learn Butler's exact strength, and his determination not to run will be widely accepted as a sign that he finds Butler stronger than most men believed.

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying To-Day.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 24.—The WORLD says: "The Democracy may point to its record to prove that, as a party, it elects honorable men and real reformers to high offices, and that when it catches rascals in its own ranks in power it drives them out and brings them to justice. It is a fact that when called upon to make a choice of candidates in an important election like that for the Presidency of the United States or the Governorship of a great State the Democrats have always selected as their standard-bearers able, upright and honest men."

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "No doubt the Republican leaders would think themselves lucky if they could divide the voters in 1884 on the single question of free trade, and set that up as the main issue, to the exclusion of all others. But the thing cannot be done."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "If the opponents of convict labor would address their energies to the task of reforming or preventing any abuses connected with the present system, they would have some claim to attention. But so long as they allow the naked question of the present system versus idleness to be presented, the people who would have to support the prisoners will have no trouble in knowing how to vote upon it."

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "The Council of Roman Catholic prelates, which was formally opened at the Cathedral yesterday, aside from its ceremonial, will hardly attract so much popular attention as gatherings of a kindred nature in the other denominations in this country generally do. One reason is that it has been announced that the business is to be transacted in Latin. Although we suspect this does not mean that the brethren may not occasionally drop into English in the heat of debate. Moreover decrees which the council will pass must be sent to Rome for approval before they can be promulgated here, and this delay will have a tendency to dull the interest which would otherwise attach to the proceedings of the Congress. There are, however, many subjects of importance in connection with the well being of the Roman Catholic Church in this part of the country which the Cardinal and his councillors will consider, and the results will doubtless have a beneficial influence on the future of the church."

THE HERALD.

The Herald says: "If, then, Congress should withdraw from circulation all the small notes—ones, twos and fives—for which postal notes answer all necessary purposes, it could safely order the coinage of at least two hundred and twenty-five millions, and perhaps two hundred and fifty millions of small silver, and this would pass naturally and immediately into circulation as the small notes were called in. Of course, as part of such a measure, Congress would stop the coinage of silver dollars."

A Box of Precious Ointment.

ST. LOUIS, September 23, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

One of the great sermons of our day has this morning been preached at the Third Baptist Church in this city, on the subject of "Love's Offering," the box of precious ointment poured by Mary on the head and the feet of Jesus.

In these days of stenography, mnemonic reporting is unusual, and the greater part of this masterpiece of pulpit oratory must be lost to the world at large. But the peroration was so exceptionally beautiful that I feel it my duty to tax to the utmost a highly cultivated memory and reproduce it as Johnson reported Burke—in the fullness of the spirit, and, as nearly as possible, in the strictness of the letter. I do this that my friends in Europe may at least have some idea of the religious privileges I enjoy in your city. Here it is:

"I wonder how long the perfume of that ointment lingered about the blessed person of the Saviour? How long it hung around Him, sweetening the air He breathed, clinging to His blessed feet, and among the saintly locks of His hair—His long, waving hair? I imagine it abode with Him even unto the end! Doubtless it was all about Him in that quest chamber where he ate the last Passover with His disciples, and in His agony in the garden of Gethsemane. Even the rude soldier who placed the crown of thorns upon His brow, must have noticed its aroma, and wondered where it came! It went with Him up the Hill of Calvary, aye! even the cross, the bitter cross, was sweetened by that fragrance, as He hung and died on it for you! When they took Him down, and buried Him, some among the friends of Joseph may have said, 'Ah! he is already perfumed, already anointed for the tomb.' Yes! and when He rose the third day victorious, when through the air around, the skies o'erhead, He passed yet upward even unto the Paradise of God to offer there His precious blood for your redemption, the fragrance of that ointment with Him still lingering sweetly on the senses of His disciples as they beheld Him rise. Nor has it left Him even yet, it is with Him to-day, it is with Him in that glorious place where He ever liveth to make intercession for you! It is with us His people and with all who are gathered together in His name. Yes! Mary's offering of love was a lasting, an enduring one. Oh, may we, may all of us resolve this day to make some great, some noble, some enduring sacrifice of Love for Jesus, that may redound to the honor and glory of His blessed name, and to our souls' salvation, in the world that knows no end!" Amen.

A Schoolboy's Complaint.

ST. LOUIS, September 24.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A friend and myself went to Lafayette Park yesterday (Sunday) afternoon and engaged a boat for half an hour. It being sunny on the south side of the lake, and as the boat had no awning over it, we kept on the north side of the lake, as it was shadier there. We rowed around for a considerable time, waiting for the man who has charge of the boats to call us in (as he always does when the time is up). At last we came near the steps, and the man called us in. We were about to get out of the boat, when he stopped us and asked for another 25 cents, because, he said, we had been out over time. We refused to give it to him because we had not heard him call us, and of course did not know when our time was up. Then he got angry and blustered around, threatening to throw us overboard, and all such talk, to frighten us. Then he called us hoodlums and such, besides using several very strong adjectives. My friend and myself happened to have just another 25 cents between us, so we paid it up, but had to walk home in consequence. Do you think it is fair for men to impose on boys tin that way? SCHOOLBOY.

Who is Laflin?

ST. LOUIS, September 24, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you please inform a constant reader of your paper whether the Laflin who recently made the strange speech before the Historical Society is the Laflin who, awhile ago, collected funds to erect a monument to the man who wrote that treacherous letter in regard to his friend Rosecranz, to the man who betrayed his friend Sherman at the Chicago Convention, to the man who was deep in the Credit Mobilier fraud, to the man who was aiding and abetting the Star Route thefts—in short, to the late Mr. President Garfield? Is this Mr. Laflin to write the epitaph on Mr. Garfield's monument, and will he mention these little circumstances in the Garfield history? Is the Historical Society so "hard up" that it is forced to resort to such dodges as that practised and recommended by Mr. Laflin to gain subscribers? DECENCY.

"Look Here, Pope Claiborne!"

ST. LOUIS, September 24, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will Mr. N. C. Claiborne, who has lately set himself up as an expounder of what the law's meaning of "charity and necessity" is (it is the Prosecuting Attorney's province, of course, to define the law!) please answer the following question: Is street sprinkling in dusty St. Louis not an act both of charity and necessity? And if so, will he, perhaps, head a petition to our lords of the sprinkling carts, requesting the allaying of the dust nuisance even on the "Sabbath?" This would regain a great deal of the popularity which Mr. Claiborne has lost, both as an expounder of the law and the Samson myth of the Jews. SEMPER IDEM.

A Question for the Underwriters.

ST. LOUIS, September 22, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you please insert the following for the benefit of your many readers? A SUBSCRIBER.

Will Mr. Bentley please state through your journal how many engines each of the following cities have, and how much territory they cover: Chicago, New York, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and St. Louis, as in the opinions of the citizens outside of insurance men it makes considerable difference whether an engine has three miles or three squares' run to a fire.

A Call for Water.

ST. LOUIS, September 24, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The sewer gas is very bad all over the city, on account of the dry weather. Could not our City Fathers order the water turned in from the fire-plugs at the corners of the streets? It would prevent much sickness, if this dry weather continues. A VICTIM.

Resisting the Ganzy Scharf.

ST. LOUIS, September 21, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

There are quite a number of subscribers to Scharf's History of St. Louis who refused to pay for it when delivered, and against whom the publishers are threatening to bring suit. Mrs. M. B. Curtis's performances of Camille are said to be wondrously unique. They are just as different from Modjeska's Camille as could be imagined. The calcium-light business is entirely dispensed with. At the proper climaxes Mr. Curtis stands in the wings and lets his big diamond breastpin flood the stage with a torrent of mellow light while the orchestra plays weird music. At Grand Rapids the other afternoon the diamond got a focus on a pot of dry paint and set fire to it, occasioning momentary alarm of a serious nature. Hereafter a small boy will carry a Babcock extinguisher wherever Mr. Curtis wears the diamond.

STARTLING STATEMENTS.

Mr. McDonald Says He Is Obstructed by Officers of the Court.

Shortly after Judge Van Wagoner ascended the bench of the Criminal Court this morning an unusual proceeding occurred. The Assistant Circuit Attorney appeared with the grand jury ready to make a "pa'tial," and scarcely had the big dozen taken their seats when Mr. Marshall F. McDonald, who is acting for the Circuit Attorney, arose and presented a novel petition to the court. The happenings which led up to the climax were as follows: Several days ago the grand jury, under the guidance of the foreman, began an investigation of the Police Board embroglio so quietly that Assistant Circuit Attorney Sullivan, whose legal light it is commonly supposed illumines the questions brought to the attention of the grand inquest, knew nothing about it. Mr. Marshall F. McDonald, who has discharged all the duties of Circuit Court Attorney during Jos. R. Harris' absence in Texas, was however, fully posted. The result of this was a high debate between the acting Circuit Attorney and the Assistant Circuit Attorney. Mr. McDonald ordered the court stenographer to go before the Grand Jury and take a report of the testimony. This was done; but when Mr. McDonald asked Reporter Johnson to read him the testimony he refused to do so. This was made the basis of a petition for a citation, which was presented this morning. In making his presentation of the facts Mr. McDonald spoke without reserve, and although he did not mention names he attracted the closest attention of every one in the court-room. "I want to state your Honor," said he "that I have been unconditionally employed to discharge all the duties of the office of Circuit Attorney during Mr. Harris' absence. I have prosecuted cases in this court where men's blood was shed, and my authority has never been questioned, but when I direct the attention of the Grand Jury in a certain direction I find myself hampered and annoyed by officers and members of this court who should be an assistance to the prosecution of such investigations. It is absolutely necessary for the proper performance of my duties in the Circuit Attorney's office that I should know what testimony is given before the Grand Jury, and I ask that I be accorded the privileges that have been shown me heretofore without question. Before the present time I have found myself hampered and annoyed when I have endeavored to direct investigations in certain directions. The law says that the notes taken before the Grand Jury shall be immediately filed with the Circuit Attorney. They are no use to me and no more intelligible than the hieroglyphics on the side of an Egyptian obelisk, but I ask that the stenographer be cited to show cause why he refuses to read me the notes of the testimony. Everybody knows the annoyances that have been thrown about the Circuit Attorney and the influences brought to bear on him when just such investigations as the one now on hand are placed on foot. As far as this matter is concerned I simply want to know, as I have a right to know, what is in these notes?"

Mr. Johnson was then called before the Court and asked why he refused to read his notes to the Circuit Attorney's clerk. He replied that since last Friday the notes have been in the keeping of the Secretary of the Grand Jury. He had refused to read them, as under his oath taken before the Grand Jury he did not think he could conscientiously divulge the information. The court then ordered a citation to issue. This Mr. Johnson waived, and then he was ordered to show cause why he should not read his notes to the clerk of the Circuit Attorney. Mr. C. O. Bishop, the attorney, will make return at 10 a. m. to-morrow for the stenographer. The court, in granting the order, hinted several times at the statements that State officers hampered the investigations of the Grand Jury, but Mr. McDonald would vouchsafe no further information.

GAMBLING GALORE.

Poker House and Other Places Running Notwithstanding the Police.

For three months past the gamblers have been striving in every way to so shape matters that they would be allowed to ply their avocation during Fair week, if no other time. Some idea of the value they place on the privilege may be gathered when it is known that a Washington avenue establishment stands ready to put up $1,500 cash; at least, one of the proprietors so stated in a public place several weeks ago. This house, during Fair week of 1881, cleared $1,800 alone on a single English Hazard table, while the faro tables doubled the amount. After all the talk about gambling that is going on it is surprising that there is so much gaming going on in the city. The Chief of Police after all the smoke does not seem able to suppress the evil. Poker rooms are running openly by the score. Lottery, which was thriving quite briskly several weeks ago, despite the fact that that branch of business had been handed over to Sergeant Sam Boyd, has taken the alarm, and the shops are all closed to-day, and the venders are waiting until the clouds roll by. There is no faro being dealt in the city, at least the police so report. Arthur Lyons yielded quietly after the expose of his faro game in the POST-DISPATCH, and those to whom life is a blank when deprived of the opportunity to buck the tiger in his lair have been forced to make pilgrimages across the river to the game which runs night and day in the hotel on the levee front. More or less attempts will be made during Fair week to open up games on the sly. Capt. Fruchte has had compiled a list of the poker rooms in his district. The public games are located as follows:

Arthur Lyons, 111 North Sixth.
Thos. Vanze, 108 North Seventh.
Henry Fisher, 718 Olive.
August Sattman, 12 North Fourth.
Bob Ray and Peter Golden, 606 Pine.
Edward Gibbons, 620 Locust.
Chas. Johnson, 816 Pine.
Jake Powell, 204 North Sixth.
Julius Lang, 401 Pine.
George Morgan and Harry Emory, 214 North Sixth.
Geo. Hight, 114 North Sixth.
Tom Rattigan, 527 Chestnut.
D. Bernards, 203 North Twelfth.
L. P. Walters, southeast corner Fourteenth and Chestnut.
Bill Hegeman, 604 Washington avenue.
Albert J. Smith, southwest corner Fourth and Locust.
H. C. Fisher, 315 North Third.
Eph Eddy, 518 Washington avenue.
Sam Watson, 224 Washington avenue.
Charles Thompson and Andrew Hall, northeast corner Eighth and Olive streets.
Fred Hilgendorf, northeast corner Eighth and Olive streets.
Arthur Harrison, 621 Locust street.
Charles Smith and Wm. Higeman, 604 Washington avenue.
James Greely, 606 Pine street.
Peter Connell, southwest corner of Seventh and Olive streets.
Robert Kerr, northeast corner Fifth and Washington avenue.

There are in addition to these quite a number of private poker rooms, run on the club plan, and patronized only by a regular set. On Christy avenue there are a number of small games patronized only by colored men. A close watch is kept upon these places to prevent the production of a "lay-out" and the consequent game of faro.

MONSTER FIREWORKS.

Details of the Display to be Given on Lucas Place During Fair Week.

Mr. Walter Mills, the artist for Pain, the fireworks manufacturer, arrived in town this morning. The object of his visit is to sketch the plans for the special devices in the fireworks exhibition to be given at Twenty-second and Locust streets, on the days of Monday and Wednesday of Fair week. Mr. Mills went out to the ground this morning, inspected it very fully, and satisfied himself that it was just the place for a good show of the kind with which he is connected.

"The ground slopes up naturally," said he, "and forms a good natural stage which will materially add to the effect of the display. Mr. Simmons tells me that the people here were much dissappointed with a dispply which was given here at the time the bridge was opened. Now, he will show you something that you never saw before. Mr. Pain will give a display here that will be superior to anything done in fireworks in the West. The designs and plans are all arranged. You probably know that Mr. Pain is the largest manufacturer of fireworks in the world. He managed, among other things, the display of fireworks which was given at Moscow, on the occasion of the coronation of the Czar. Mr. Pain has taken prizes in several parts of the country, and the display we will give here will be the best we have."

"Are there many manufacturers of importance in this country?"

"There are several, but they are all too old fashioned. They have not caught up with the latest designs. Mr. Pain's principal manufactory is located in England, but he has a branch establishment at Coney Island. All his workmen have been sent over to this country, and they are skilled artists in their departments."

"So the fashion changes in fireworks, does it?"

"Very nearly as frequently as it does in clothes. There has been a great improvement in the arrangement of colors, and things are done on a much larger scale than they were a few years ago. For instance, some of the aerial rockets we use are a foot in diameter, which is much larger than those handled by American manufacturers. You can imagine the effect of such a shell as that when it bursts to pieces in the air. Some of the displays we make here are novel and picturesque. The Jumbo we show is a large elephant, just as large as the original. The animal walks about the ground, and has a natural movement of the trunk, head and tail, which makes a very laughable sight. Then the comical boxing match between Sullivan and Slade, which we will give you, is done with figures twelve feet in height. The images are moved by machinery, and a perfect representation of a boxing contest in all its details is given. The bombardment of Alexandria, done in what we call lance work, with perfect representations of the city, the ships, etc., will be worth seeing and the falls of Niagara will also be a pretty show."

Mr. Pain has sent on word that he will arrive here to-morrow with a full force of his assistants to begin work. He states that the "Bombardment of Alexandria," the big devise, will be thirty by sixty feet in size. He has already shipped two tons of mortars and several car-loads of other stuff, and he says that the whole display is nearly ready.

The Coming of Lord Coleridge.

It is expected, though no authoritative announcement of the fact will be made for a few days yet, that Lord Chief Justice Coleridge of England and the party which accompanies him will leave Chicago, where they now are, on Thursday evening. In that case they will arrive in St. Louis on Friday morning of this week. Lord Coleridge's visit to the United States is purely a pleasure excursion, and has no reference whatever to his official position at home. Thus far, in whatever cities he has visited, he has been the guest distinctively of the bar. The numerous banquets which he has assisted to demolish have in the main been provided by lawyers. As yet the bar of St. Louis have made no definite announcement of their own projects looking towards Lord Coleridge's entertainment during his sojourn in this city. It was even stated, and the statement has gone without contradiction, that Lord Coleridge's entertainers in St. Louis would be the Commercial Club to the exclusion of the bar as a class. It appears, however, that this statement was a mistake. As a matter of fact, Lord Coleridge and his fellow travelers will be taken in charge of upon their arrival in St. Louis by a local committee of lawyers who are to be selected for the purpose. The party will receive the most distinguished consideration and there is no doubt that they will go back to England with as pleasant recollections of St. Louis as any city in the country. The Englishmen will most probably remain in St. Louis over Fair Week, and the festivities of the week will be duly participated in by them.

Modifying the Injunction.

The attorneys in the gas case appeared before Judge Lubke of the Circuit Court this morning for the purpose of arguing a motion which had been filed on behalf of the St. Louis Heat, Fuel and Power Company (the Water Gas Company) for a modification of the injunction order granted last month, so as to permit them to lay inlet and outlet pipes from the generator room, on Eighteenth street and Clark avenue, to a new receiver located on a lot about fifty feet northwest of the works. The motion was opposed by Judge Madill and Mr. Glover, the attorneys of the St. Louis Gas Company, who insisted that the granting of the motion would be in derogation of the rights of their clients under the injunction order. The court took the view, however, which was urged by the attorneys of the Water-Gas Company, that the granting of the motion would not injure the St. Louis Gaslight Company, and granted the motion as prayed.

An Adjourned Meeting.

The adjourned meeting of the bar, at which the committee appointed last Monday to draught resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Judge John M. Krum were to have submitted their report, was to have taken place in Court Room No. 4 at 10 o'clock this morning, but owing to an oversight no notice of the proposed meeting was given in the daily newspapers, and consequently only a few members of the bar were present. Among those who did attend was Miss Phoebe Couzins. On account of the scant attendance the chairman, Mr. Samuel T. Glover, adjourned the meeting until 10 o'clock next Wednesday morning, at which time the committee will make their report. A full attendance of the bar is requested.

SUNDAY PAPERS.

The Evangelical Alliance Discuss Sabbath Newspapers.

Arguments Pro and Con—Anniversary of Martin Luther's Birthday—Religious News

The Evangelical Alliance met at 11 o'clock this morning in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. There was a large attendance of the local clery, Dr. Schofield, of the Baptist church occupying the chair. After the usual preliminary devotional services, Dr. Geo. C. Adams, of the Congregationalist Church, offered the following petition for the consideration of the Alliance:

"Desiring in every way possible to aid in the present movement to restore to the Lord's Day its former sanctity, we the pastors of the Congregational Church of St. Louis agree to withold from the Sunday newspapers all announcements of our services; and we as a body of ministers respectfully petition the members of the Evangelical Alliance to do the same."

The above petition was unanimously adopted by the ministers' meeting of the Congregational Churches at their last meeting, and this morning was the occasion of a protracted discussion, in which the Sunday newspaper was delicately castigated by the Puritan element, and defended as a civilizing benefactor by the more liberal element, of whom Dr. Boyd was the spokesman. A motion was made by Dr. Rhodes indorsing the petition, which was lost.

DR. BOYD,

in an opposing speech, said that as long as the newspapers were published on Sunday, his church-notice would appear. If his Congregational brethren wanted to keep their advertisements out, it was all right. He regarded the matter of advertising his pulpit appointments in the same light as the running of street cars. In the abstract it might be considered a sin, but the million necessities of metropolitan life rendered many things legitimate which arigid Puritanism might frown down upon. In the broad Christ-like sense, he was in favor of adhering to the demands of the Lord's Day, but he was not in favor of a Puritan Sabbath, as far as that implied an absurd condemnation of the works of public charity, and the suppression of things which were innocent in their nature. He believed in the golden mean. He had heard of a man in a certain religious circle who refused his sick wife tea on the Lord's Day on the ground that it was a violation of the Sabbath. That sort of Puritanism he had little respect for.

DR. GANSE,

who represented the Puritanic element of the alliance, said in reply that it was a debatable question as to whether such a question came within the domain of the alliance, and that it would be difficult to ascertain whether it was the business of the alliance to draw a distinction concerning the details of Sunday observance. He regarded the Sunday newspaper, however, as the most efficient organ of modern times for destroying the old-time veneration for the Sabbath. It was the place where children found those examples which lead to Sabbath desecration. He said he was not in the habit of taking a Sunday newspaper.

DR. ADAMS

then stated that the alliance seemed afraid of taking a square position on any subject, and that if it took a bold and definite position in this case it would be the first time in its history.

DR. HEWEY

followed in a warm speech in which he said that there was ample opportunity in the columns of the Saturday POST-DISPATCH for all the advertising that the ministers of St. Louis needed.

DR. RHODES

then moved that the question be left to the decision of the various ministerial associations of the city to decide, which was unanimously carried.

Dr. Rhodes read the following report of the committee appointed to arrange for the memorial service in honor of the approaching

ANNIVERSARY OF THE BIRTH OF MARTIN LUTHER:

"The committee appointed to arrange for a suitable memorial service in honor of the approaching anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther beg leave to report the following:

"Whereas, The fourth century of the birth of Martin Luther on Saturday, the 10th of November next, is an event so interblended with the great purposes of God, and with our best blessings of church and state, and inasmuch as it eminently becomes all Protestant Christians to make such recognition of Luther as the chief instrument under God, in the great work of the reformation as will at once express their heartfelt gratitude to God and furnish a fitting testimony to the great doctrine of justification by faith as the foundation of our holy religion.

"Therefore, be it resolved, 1. That the ministers in connection with this alliance be requested to set forth in morning or evening sermon of Lord's Day, November 11th, such parts of Luther's work in the reformation as may seem to them good. The resolution was amended by a unanimous request that Dr. Rhodes deliver an oration on Luther in the Second Baptist Church on Saturday afternoon, November 10th, at 4 o'clock.

NOTES.

The German Evangelical Lutheran congregations of the city are carrying on a series of evangelistic mission services at the O'Fallon Park grounds. There were between 2,800 and 3,000 people present at the services yesterday.

The controversy as to which of the colored Baptist congregations of St. Louis can be historically and authoritatively pointed out as the First Colored Baptist Church of the city, was settled yesterday afternoon, by the Rev. Dr. Boyd, who formally declared the church over which the Rev. Thomas Jefferson presided as being the First Colored Baptist. The statement of Dr. Boyd was based upon the decision of a council of ministers.

The postponed anniversary of the Young Ladies' Society of the German Evangelical Lutheran Trinity Church, Eighth street and Lafayette avenue, was happily consummated last evening before a large assembly of visitors.

HYDRANT WATER,

And a Nauseating Discovery This Morning—A Ball of Worms.

Mr. W. A. Hall, a gentleman who resides on Howard street near Broadway, called at J. M. Leslie & Co.'s this morning with a two-ounce bottle of hydrant water which he wanted to examine under a microscope. An oval mass of what looked like brown moss lay at the bottom of the bottle. A close examination revealed the fact that the ball was composed of a consolidated group of brown worms which had come together in some settling basin evidently on the principle that in union there is strength. Viewed through a strong microscope they looked like a horrible bundle of snakes that had become knotted and were making violent efforts to break loose. The worms were all about the size of an eyelash, and were restless, active specimens, writhing about with a vigor and vitality unusual to worms. Mr. Hall stated that the bunch came out of his hydrant this morning with a large number of single healthy fellows, and just to satisfy his curiosity he bottled them up for microscopic examination. He says that they come out with the water every morning, so much so that the first few basins of water are filled with them and have to be thrown away. He took the bottles to the office of the Health Commissioner and was there informed that they must have been generated by the hydrant. Whether it is dangerous to drink water in which these spiral articles can be observed is a question which, in the absence of the scientist of the POST-DISPATCH, could not be determined this morning. But it would be worth while for water-drinkers to examine the liquid which is "sparkling and bright" before drinking it, or else they may be carrying about in their stomachs some valuable specimens of angle worms or lizards. The particles do not look like infusoria, and cannot be anything else than the germ of the brown worm whose enemy is vermifuge. As there are about 50,000 little ones in the city who have not learned to vary the monotony of drinking water by allaying their thirst with something which is a great deal more cheering and inebriating, the importance of inspecting the water drank by children may be perceived at a glance. Hyd-ants so situated as to draw water only which has been settling in the pipes, should be looked after, and the water from them, if used for other than washing purposes, should be first boiled.

D. CRAWFORD & Co.'s grand opening and exposition of new fall importations in millinery, ladies' ready-made suits, costumes, cloaks, doimans, circulars, jackets, etc., will take place Wednesday next, to which all the ladies of St. Louis and vicinity are most cordially invited.

RAILWAY NOTES.

The Governor's Gift—Splitting Trains—Notes and Personals.

W. D. Sanborn, division passenger agent of the C., B. & Q., has returned from Chicago.

Capt. C. W. Rogers, vice-president and general manager of the 'Frisco Line, left this morning for the Pacific coast, where he goes to arrange for the opening of a new line to San Francisco via the St. L. & S. F., Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and the Atlantic and Pacific.

Capt. R. S. Hayes, first vice-president and Col. R. Andrews, general superintendent of the Wabash, left this morning to inspect the eastern division of that road. The lines west of the Mississippi were looked over last week.

Col. A. A. Talmage, general transportation manager of the Missouri Pacific, left this morning for Marshall, Tex. He will inspect all the shops between St. Louis and Marshall.

H. A. Fisher, assistant to the general passenger agent of the Wabash, returned from Toledo this morning.

The night trains leaving Quincy and St. Louis on the Wabash have heretofore been run as one train between Decatur and Toledo. The traffic has grown to such proportions that this practice has been abandoned, and both trains are being run through single. Since the new move, trains from the east have been getting in on time.

Dick Fitzgerald, the oldest conductor on the Missouri Pacific, has added another laurel to his reputation for efficiency and politeness. When he returned home from a trip a few days ago he found an elegant silver tea set of six pieces with "R. E. F." engraved on all except the tea urn, which bore the following names: T. T. Crittenden, E. E. Murray, John F. Philips, John A. Williams and T. O. Towle; also "Presented to R. E. Fitzgerald of the Missouri Pacific as a souvenir of the trip to the Pacific coast in 1883." Dick had charge of the Governor's train to Frisco and return.

BELLEVILLE.

Over 2,000 persons listened to Bishop Bowman yesterday.

The Circuit Court met this morning, Judge Watts presiding.

Mungesser, a German school teacher, arrived here Saturday having walked from Baltimore, Md.

The attendance at the Turngemeide yesterday was satisfactory. The ball at the City Park was a brilliant affair.

At the Miners and Operators' meeting which was held on the 20th inst. at Trouble's Hall, in East St. Louis, the agreement made was that the price for digging was to be 2½ cents per bushel, of 80 pounds to the bushe. Since then a Mr. Hodgen requires 90 pounds to the bushel from his diggers, and Hardin & Emery, John Glaze, Anthony Brandenburg and Heinrick & Bro. refuse to pay more than 2¼ cents per bushel. The other operators are becoming tired of their agreement.

LESS THAN A DOLLAR.

The Railroad Passenger War in Chicago—To Louisville, 85 Cents.

CHICAGO, September 24.—The Louisville, New Albany and Chicago Railroad Company have inaugurated a cut to Indianapolis, Cincinnati and other points in competition with the Pan-Handle this morning, as announced in these dispatches last night they would do. Thus far the cut has not been met by the Pan-Handle, and thus far the Eastern Illinois and Kankakee lines have not come into the fight, but it is conceded they cannot stay out if the fight lasts until the forenoon. Scalpers are selling tickets to Indianapolis and Louisville at 85 cents to 90 cents, and a rate of 50 cents by the roads themselves is anticipated before night.

SACRIFICED HIS LIFE.

The Brave Engineer Who Stayed by the Throttle—His Passengers Unhurt.

CINCINNATI, September 24.—A Times-Star Akron, Ohio, special says: John Bull, the engineer of the "Thunderbolt" passenger train on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio road, died to-day from the injuries received by the collision with the freight train at Talmadge on Saturday. He might have saved his life by jumping, but he thought of the passengers, reversed his engine and set the air-brakes, then put on full steam, started his engine ahead and broke loose from the cars. The passengers were unhurt. He lived at Galion, and was the oldest engineer on the road.

Trenton, Ill.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

TRENTON, ILL., September 24.—A game of ball was played here yesterday afternoon between the Reds of Trenton and Lill's Le Bouquet Club of Mascoutah, which resulted in a victory for the former nine by a score of 15 to 9. A large crowd was present and much money changed hands. J. Heckle umpired. This is the fourth game the Trenton boys have played with Mascoutah clubs and they have come off victorious every time.

The Colored Convention.

LOUISVILLE, KY., September 24.—The Colored National Convention is in session this afternoon at Liederkranz' Hall, being called to order by Milton Holland, of Washington, D. C. About three hundred and fifty delegatest are present. The time since the meeting, has been consumed in efforts to elect a temp rary chairman. Tandy, of Missouri and Green of Washington are the leading candidates. Fred Douglass will be chosen permanent chairman.

Albert Andriano Dead.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., September 24.—Albert Andriano died suddenly this morning of apoplexy, aged 70. He was one of the oldest citizens and very wealthy. He was the father of City Collector Andriano.

The Weather at Chicago.

CHICAGO, September 24.—Last night was quite cool, and, after midnight, calm and clear. There was, however, no frost in this city, and, as far as can be learned, none in the surrounding country.

THE FOX HUNT.

What Members of the Humane Society Think of It.

Some are Inclined to Stop the Sport—Others See no Harm in It—Interviews with Members.

"A grand English fox chase of ye olden times. Interesting! Exciting! Invigorating!" to quote the language of the advertisement, is to take place at the Cote Brilliante race track next Saturday afternoon, and again on Wednesday, October 3. A great many gentlemen who are opposed to cruelty to animals have been stirred up by this announcement, notwithstanding the fact that the chase is to be superintended by Mr. W. S. Brawner, assisted by experienced English fox-hunters, and that it will be a "faithful reproduction of the famous sport so eagerly participated in by the people of Europe, and so thoroughly enjoyed by all." These gentlemen are very desirous of knowing what the Humane Society propose to do in the matter, claiming that it is a case where their interference is necessary. They think that to turn a couple of foxes loose in an enclosure to be hunted to death is downright cruelty and should not be permitted. Thinking the Humane Society would interfere with the sport, and having heard that there was a division of sentiment among the members of the executive committee, a POST-DISPATCH reporter started out this morning to interview the members:

MR. EDWIN HARRISON,

the president of the Society, said, when asked what he thought about the proposed hunt: "I don't think anything about it. I have received no notice from the Executive Committee, or no intimation that it is their intention to interfere. I don't know enough about the nature of the proposed sport to know whether there is any cruelty involved in it."

"Has the matter been brought before the Executive Committee?"

"Not that I know of."

"It is rumored that there is a difference of opinion on the subject among the members."

"If there is a division, I don't know anything about it."

Mr. Harrison terminated the interview by stating that the society was doing good work, and its work was telling. The members of the Executive Committee are Messrs. Jas. Garland, Edward Hayden, Robert L. Henry, R. S. MacDonald, Henry B. Pettes, Capt. Fox and Dr. Comstock. Jno. W. Munson is Secretary. R. S. MacDonald, who, strange to say, is opposed to the contemplated fox-hunt, is out of the city. Dr. Comstock is also absent, and neither Garland nor Hayden could be seen this morning.

HENRY B. PETTES

replied to the reporter's querry with the words: "I think a fox-hunt is a very cruel and foolish sort of sport. It is a cruel thing to pen animals up in a limited space, giving them no show for their lives at all, and then to tear them to pieces. I don't think public opinion will sustain these people. If the foxes were turned loose in an open country as they are in England at a fox-hunt, there would not be such a strong objection to the sport, but here the foxes are turned loose in an inclosure and it is sure death for them any way they turn."

"Has the matter been disscussed by the society?"

"It has been discussed as being a thing that ought not to be permitted, but whether the society will take action upon it is another thing."

"When does the committee meet again?"

"The committee will meet next Friday evening and the matter will come up for an informal discussion. I can't say whether the chase will be prevented or not, but I hope it will. In a few years this sort of thing will be stopped by public opinion. It is wrong, but it is a matter of education, and is greatly to be deplored."

MR. ROBERT L. HENRY

said: "The society has too much to do to bother with it. There are too many other important things to look after; too many diseased horses and mules going around the streets. Prosecutions of such cases take all the money we can spare. It is all nonsense about intertering with the fox-chase. In the first place it doesn't come under our jurisdiction. We have no more right to interfere with fox-hunting or pigeon-shooting than we have with fishing for bass or croppie. The question of interference was mooted at our last meeting, but we did not do anything. I don't think there is anybody against the fox hunt, for Henry Pettes and Bob MacDonald; and Bob MacDonald is the worst old fox-hunter in the business. He's notorious for it. He goes out in the country with those dogs of his, which, by the way, are sure death to a fox, and when he gets after one the fox is bound to be killed. Why he has been caricatured on account of his love for fox-hunting, as any one who has seen his picture at Besseni's knows. I wish the POST-DISPATCH would give him a blast about it."

JNO. W. MUNSON,

secretary of the society, said: "I have been away for two weeks and I have no means of knowing the feeling of the members about it. I haven't heard any of them express an opinion. For my part I can't see where the cruelty comes in, and I can't see how the Humane Society could act upon it."

JOHN M. GLOVER,

one of the vice-presidents of the society, said he was opposed to the carrying out of the fox-chase. "In my opinion," said he, "fox hunting comes within the spirit of the institution and ought to be stopped. If I was chairman of the Executive Board I would stop it."

"What is your opinion of it as a lawyer?"

"I don't know whether the statute covers it or not."

Mr. Glover looked the matter up and said: "Section 1609 of the statutes, which is the section under which the society is operating, only prohibits cruelty to domestic animals. Section 1611 prohibits bull-baiting and cock-fighting. I doubt whether the law could be invoked. At the same time it is a violation of the letter and spirit of the society and no one connected with the society ought to have anything to do with it."

From a pamphlet published by the Humane Society the following is taken:

The Humane Society of Missouri is an incorporated society under the State laws, for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

The society proposes to have the laws enforced which are designed to protect animals from abuse, and to furnish such information as will influence their better treatment by those having animals under their control. * * *

The society requests information in regard to the treatment of animals, and especially of cases of neglect and cruelty, informants to give their names and address, which will not be made known except with their consent. The information will be a guide to the inquiries of the agents of the society.

Result of a Farmers' Feud.

ENFIELD, N. H., September 24.—Ira B. Fogg, a farmer living in Canaan, was waylaid and nearly murdered Saturday night. At last accounts he had not recovered consciousness and was delirious most of the time. A. J. Walker, who owns an adjoining farm, and with whom Fogg had numerous disputes concerning cattle and fences, has been arrested charged with the deed and held to await the result of Fogg's injuries.

Coleridge in Chicago.

CHICAGO, September 24.—Lord Coleridge and several members of the New York Bar are now in the city, and have accepted an invitation to hear Duff's Standard Opera Company in "Heart and Hand," this evening.

RUSSIAN SCHOOLS.

A Glimpse of the Military Discipline Enforced in Them.

Correspondence of the London Globe.

The proposal to reintroduce whipping into Russian schools has done something more than send a thrill of indignant excitement through the teaching classes of this country. It reveals weakness in a department of State to which the public have always been led to attribute exceptional strength and efficiency. That a national system of education should fall on the disciplinary side is a strange experience in a land which has for centuries been associated with the use, or misuse, of the knout; yet this is practically the confession that is made by the highly-placed pedagogues who are now zealously urging on the Minister of Public Instruction the value of the rod as a means of education. Appearances are certainly not in favor of the view that there is any serious lack of discipline in the middle and elementary schools of the Empire. To judge by its regulations, the gymnasium, for example, is quite a model of strictness and propriety. The scholar is kept in order by rules from the very outset of his educational career in one of these establishments. There are rules regulating his attendance at church and his behavior during Divine services; rules showing him when he is to have holidays and when to return from them; under what pretexts he may forsake his class, and with what diligence he must make up for time lost during illness; rules fixing his behavior to his teachers in and out of school hours; and a variety of other rules inculcating politeness, honesty, truth, early rising, etc. Relaxation must be indulged in carefully; amusement he cannot have at all, if it can only take the form of "theatrical representations harmful to the moral sentiments." Masquerades he must not visit, nor must he enter the wine-cellar, the coffee tavern, or the confectioner's shop. He is held to cleanliness of person, and forbidden to use tobacco or drink spirits. Long hair is an abomination with the school authorities, and if the pupil has unwittingly encoura ed the growth of a beard, he can only hope to escape punishment by a timely visit to the barber's shop. Ornaments of all kinds, in fact, are forbidden, and so into the same category with the "unnecessary" beard are thrust the unnecessary ring, walking-stick and eye-glass. Saluting the Emperor when met in the street is provided for by a very strict regulation, the observance of which has fallen into desuetude of late years, rather owing to want of opportunity than lack of will. Of course the scholar has a uniform. This is indispensible. It teaches the military idea how to shoot, and it gives material assistance to the police, who are empowered to enforce the regulations prohibiting the visits of students to masquerade balls, wine cellars, and other objectionable places of resort.

Butter at the Fair.

The butter dealers at a meeting held today at the Merchants' Exchange appointed judges to make awards of premiums for exhibits at the Fair. It was also decided that butter arriving later than Monday, October 1, would not be allowed to compete for premiums.

DIED.

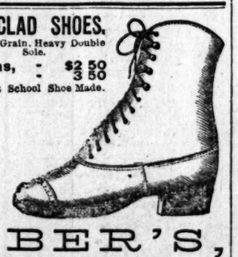

SOMERVILLE—In St. Louis, on Sunday, September 23, 1883, M. E. ELIZABETH SOMERVILLE, aged 75 years, mother of Archibald J., William, J. C. and B. B. Somerville.

Funeral will take place on Tuesday, September 25, at 2 p. m., from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Augusta Pullis, No. 2921 Rutger street. Friends of the family are invited to attend without further notice.

The best School Shoe Made.

ABER'S,
217 N. FIFTH ST.

HAVE YOU TRIED IT?
THE OLD ADAGE, THAT "AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION IS WORTH A POUND OF CURE," WAS NEVER MORE APTLY ILLUSTRATED THAN BY HIM WHO TAKES HIS DOSE OF TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT BEFORE THE MORNING MEAL. FOR IT NOT ONLY GENTLY REGULATES AND PURIFIES THE SYSTEM, BUT IS A PROTECTION AGAINST DISEASE, WHICH NO ONE OUGHT TO DISREGARD. ALL DRUGGISTS HAVE IT.

OAK-CORN.

Hasten, all ye forest-dwellers,
Crowd your garners, fill your cellars;
Oak-corn bread and meat provideth,
That each careful creature hideth
Where the hoar-frost cannot taste it,
Nor the winds in winter waste it.
Come and gather, come and gather,
In the misty autumn weather.

Here it was that faun and satyr,
Long ago, were used to scatter
Acorns in these shady alleys,
Tossing them with sportive sallies;
Sylvan in his crown did bear them;
All the sober wood-nymphs wear them,
More esteemed than gem or jewel.
Acorns, rich in food and fuel,
Feed the flock and shepherd's ingle,
When the frosty planets tingle.
Acorns, where old Merlin slumbers,
Sprout young oaks, in countless numbers,
Through his mossy garments starting,
His long locks and gray beard parting;
While the jay and squirrel chatter,
And the ceaseless showers patter—
Leaves and acorns, all together,
Dropping in the misty weather.
When he wakens, how he'll wonder
At the forest he sleeps under!

"THE LID OF HELL."

Java's "Infernal Cauldron"—Narrative Recalled by the Volcanic Outbreak.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

Java is once more making good its right to contest with Japan the grim title of the "Lid of Hell." The present eruption of the volcano on the island of Krakatoa seems not unworthy to compare with some of the most serious of the outbreaks recorded in the history of Java. The loss of life appears to have been chiefly due to the tidal wave that overwhelmed Anger and testified to a great convulsion beneath the sea, which is said to have interrupted the navigation of the Straits of Sunda. As it must be some weeks at the least before a detailed description of this latest eruption reaches this country, the following narrative of a similar convulsion which occurred at Tomboro, in the Island of Sambawa, at the other end of the Island of Java, in 1815, may not be without interest:

Sir Stamford Raffles, who was then Governor of Java, reported that no one remembers, nor does tradition record, so tremendous an eruption." The first announcement resembled a prolonged cannonade, loud or subdued, according to distance or wind, and the responsible authorities in Java instantly prepared to resist an attack. The people at some of the hill stations hurried down in arms prepared to defend the head factories; in some cases troops were marched to posts supposed to be in danger, and the East India Company's cruiser Benares was sent from Macassar with a detachment of soldiers on board in search of the enemy. The sound of the explosions was heard as far off as Sumatra, a distance of 970 geographical miles, and utter darkness was caused by the fall of ashes even in the Gresia district, more than 300 miles away. Explosions had been noted as early as the 5th of April, but it was not till five days later that the eruption developed in the alarming manner which has given it a prominent place on the records of Java. The Rajah of Sangar, who witnessed it as a close spectator, gave this description of the outbreak:

"About 7 o'clock, the night of the 10th of April, three distinct columns of flame burst forth near the top of the mountain, all of them apparently within the verge of the crater, and after ascending separately to a very great height their tops united in the air in a troubled, confused manner. In a short time the whole mountain next Sanger appeared like a body of liquid fire, extending itself in every direction. The fire and columns of flame continued to rage with unabated fury until the darkness caused by the quantity of falling matter obscured it at about 8 o'clock."

The captain of a Malay prow from Timor reported that the following day (the 11th), while at sea, far distant from Sambawa, he was in utter darkness; and that on his passing the Tomboro mountain at a distance of five miles he observed the lower part of it in flames, and the upper part covered with clouds. Just as the spectacle of the mountain in flames was being rendered imperceptible by the heavy clouds which emanated from the crater, about 8 o'clock in the morning of the first great day of the eruption (the 10th) stones, generally about the size of walnuts, but in some cases as large as two fists, came down thickly at Sanger; and between 9 and 10 o'clock ashes began to fall. Soon after there was experienced a violent whirlwind, which blew down every house in the village of Sanger, and in the district nearer the agitated volcano tore up by the roots the largest trees and carried them along in the air, together with men, houses, cattle and whatever had come within its influence. The sea rose nearly twelve feet higher than it had ever been known to before, and swept away houses and everything within its reach. The whirlwind lasted about an hour. No explosions were heard till it had ceased, at about 11 o'clock. From midnight till the evening of the next day (the 11th) they continued without intermission. Afterwards their violence moderated, and they were only heard at intervals; but the explosions did not cease entirely until the 15th of July, and towards the close of September the mountain was still throwing out immense volumes of smoke. The greatest devastation conceivable appear to have been wrought by the showers of ashes. At Bima, forty miles from Tomboro, the explosions were "most terrific." The anchorage of Bima was altered considerably.

The commander of the Benares, sailing from Macassar southward at dawn of the 12th to ascertain the cause of the heavy cannonade, reports that at 8 o'clock the face of the heavens to the southward and westward had assumed a dark aspect; by 11 o'clock the whole of the heavens were obscured, except a small space near the horizon to the eastward, the quarter from which the wind came. The ashes then began to fall in showers, and the appearance was altogether truly awful and alarming. By noon the light that had remained in the eastern part of the horizon had disappeared, and complete darkness covered the face of day. This continued so profound during the remainder of the day that the commander who made the report had never seen anything to equal it in the darkest night; it was impossible to see your hand when held up close to your eyes. The ashes fell without intermission throughout the night, and were so light and subtle that, notwithstanding the precaution of spreading awnings fore and aft, they pervaded every part of the ship. At 6 o'clock the next morning it was as dark as ever, but at 8 o'clock light began to increase rapidly. The appearance of the ship when daylight returned was most singular. Every part was covered with the matter that had fallen, which had the look of calcined pumice-stone, nearly the color of wood ashes. It lay in heaps of a foot in depth in many parts of the deck, and several tons of it must have been thrown overboard. For, though an impalpable powder of dust when it fell, it was, when compressed, of considerable weight—a pint measure of it weighed twelve ounces and three-quarters. It was perfectly tasteless, while it had a faint burnt smell, though nothing like sulphur; and it did not affect the eyes. When mixed with water it formed a tenacious mud, difficult to be wiped off. As the ship approached the coast of Sambawa, the 18th of April, she passed through great quantities of pumice-stone floating on the sea, which at first sight appeared like shoals. One of these masses at less than a mile looked like a dry sand-bank, upwards of three miles in length, with black rocks in several parts of it. It proved to be a complete mass of pumice-stone floating on the sea, some inches in depth, with great numbers of trees and logs, which appeared to be burned and shivered as if by lightning. A boat sent to examine it had much difficulty in pulling through it, and until the Benares entered Bima Bay the sea was literally covered with shoals of pumice and floating timber. It was the same all along the coast.

Similar reports as to a dense darkness during the greater part of the 12th of April and heavy falls of ashes were made by residents inland, but the sun does not appear to have been actually obscured in any district west of Samarang. A resident in Gresia records as to the 12th: "Eleven a. m., breakfasted by candle-light; the birds began to chirrup as at the approach of day." In several situations a tremulous motion of the earth was experienced, and in some districts it was extremely cold. At some places, presumably those most distant from the mountain, the ashes fell lightly; at others they fell eight inches deep. On the shore in the vicinity of Tomboro itself the ashes lay three feet high. A heavy rain on the 17th partially saved the crops, and prevented the spread of fever and a violent diarrhea (supposed to be caused by drinking water impregnated with ashes, which had threatened to become epidemic.) One hundred people out of 12,000 who are living in the locality of Tomboro alone escaped; and the other inhabitants of the island suffered terribly for some time afterwards from famine. The whole country, in short, was entirely desolated. Some of the people looked upon the extraordinary occurrence as "typical of a change, of the re-establishment of the former Government;" others as a retribution for the murder of a Rajah by his brother; and others again accounted for it by a reference to their legendary tales, saying that "the celebrated Nyai Leroh Kidul had been marrying one of her children," the ashes being the dregs of the ammunition she had used in the firing of salutes from her supernatural artillery.

THE HERMIT NATION.

Corea's Ambassadors to be Presented to President Arthur.

From the New York World.

An embassy of eleven Coreans, the first residents of Corea that have ever visited any civilized country, arrived in New York yesterday afternoon from Washington. They were accompanied by Assistant Secretary of State J. C. B. Davis, Lieut. Mason and Ensign Foulk. The visitors are all especially noted men and attached to the home Government, and by virtue of official connection or by birth belong to the nobility. The party comprises Min Yong Ik, the Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of his Corean Majesty: Hing Yong Sik, the Vice-Minister; So Koang Pom, the Secretary; Percival Lowell, Foreign Secretary; Woo Li Tang, interpreter; five attaches of the Embassy, and Tsunejiro Miyaoka, a Japanese acting as private secretary to the Home Secretary. The Minister is the nephew of the Queen, and is Vice-Minister to the Prime Minister. Mr. Lowell, in addition to his position as Foreign Secretary, was made Foreign House Secretary to heighten the tone of the Embassy.

About the hotel the visitors attracted universal attention, and their peculiar dress subjected the noblemen to the rude stares of common Americans. The son of a Queen writhed uneasily beneath this scrutiny which in his own land would have been punished by torture ending in death. As he lounged upon a divan in the parlor he presented a singular appearance. Upon his head he wore a covering which partook of the nature of a silk hat which had grown to only half its normal height, developing at this stage into a Quaker's short felt. But instead of felt the entire structure was built of very fine split bamboo, about which were woven silk threads, the whole forming a transparent network, recalling the wire screens used in country groceries to cover cheeses. The more humble of the party wore hats, the crowns of which were made of horsehair. The etiquette of the hat was explained as very intricate, the head covering indicating the caste of the wearer, the lower classes being restricted to horsehair hats. For street or undress the Prince wore a jelly can. Through the transparent covering the coiffure could be seen. The hair was brushed up into a top-knot, forming a straight, solitary tuft exactly in the center of the head.

Beneath the overshadowing headgear the Prince's swarthy face appeared still darker, a thin, beard and stingy mustache giving an unkempt appearance to his countenance. On either side of his face rows of amber beads, in imitation of the English mutton-chop whiskers, hung down to the waist. The less blue-blooded followers were permitted to wear the beads only to the chin, where they were fastened. The dress of the Prince was of white silk of an exquisite pattern. The coat was a sort of loose sack, like a "Mother Hubbard" dress, and the breasts were padded into rounded symmetry, seen in this country only among ladies. Loose, crimson trousers were gathered at the knee, and white silk stockings adorned a pair of legs which had been tastefully padded. The outdoor costume consists of a long, black toga. The sleeves are of some gaudy color. One side is usually crimson and the other blue, recalling an American circus clown's dress. No caste is attached to the dress, the headgear performing this function. The hat must be worn when official business is being transacted and in the presence of callers.

Mr. Lowell, though a Corean nobleman and a government official, has never set foot in Corea. He describes it as a terra incognita and as a veritable Hermit Land, as it has been named. The country is less known than Central Africa or the Antarctic circle. Out of the 15,000,000 population none ever leave Corea, and no person not a native of the peninsula ever enters the country. The penalty of death has been rigorously enforced on all so foolhardy as to attempt to visit this isolated people. Recently this law has been less rigorously observed, and one object of the present courtesies is to break down the barriers that separate Corea from the world and civilization. The inhabitants are said to be well-educated. The principal industries are mining and agriculture. Torture is still the punishment for petty crimes, and the policemen wear glasses and carry umbrellas and canes. They are by virtue of their office nobles, and the common people are compelled to pay them due deference under extreme penalty.

The members of the Embassy express themselves well pleased with what they have seen.

A Rattlesnake Up a Tree.

From the Blairstown (N. J.) Press.

On Saturday morning, the law having made it legal for squirrel shooting, Messrs. Alexander and William Titman of Walnut Valley started in search of this game, and were tolerably successful in their efforts. After they had come upon what is known as the Willever property, some three miles from this town, along the mountain, they were traveling along at a moderate pace, looking to the tops of the trees for a shot at a squirrel. It was while thus engaged, and when near a slender birch tree, that Alexander saw a rattlesnake at least forty feet from the ground, dangling from the limb of the tree. After watching the operations of the snake for some time, the hunters became satisfied that the reptile was in quest of the same game as they were, and a shot from the gun of William brought it wriggling to the ground, when it was found that the snake bore nine ratties, and was of unusual size. The tree which the snake had ascended to such a height was in circumference about the size of a telegraph pole, and not the sign of a limb upon it for a distance of not less than forty feet, upon which the snake was supported and discovered and shot. It is seldom that rattlers attempt climbing trees, and never before had it come under the observation of our informant that one had attained such a height, but as there was a hickory-nut tree standing near at hand it is very probable that the energetic snake, which lost its life by its venturesome experiment, was after a squirrel, and expected it to jump from the hickory to the birch tree and become a willing victim to the snake's appetite.

THE FALSE PROPHET.

His Saintliness, His Liberality and His Fighting Qualities.

Khartoum Correspondence of the Daily News.

Half the civil officials are said to be already partisans of the rebels, and all through the rebellion trade has been carried on freely between the disturbed districts and those nominally loyal to the Khedive under the passports of the False Prophet. Meanwhile a proclamation from two officers of the regular army who have joined the rebels to the army and civil officials is circulated, in which the Mahdi is spoken of in highly complimentary terms. They say: "Friends, we are with the Mahdi, and as we have seen him regularly for the past six months, we watch his proceedings attentively, we hear all he says, and we have not found in him a grain of anything that is bad or unbecoming his holy mission (peace be unto him). By the great God and the excellent Koran, we swear that he is the true Mahdi, the expected one; there is no other but he, and the man who doubts his holy mission is an infidel, and God has already decreed it. As a proof of this, the large amounts of gold and silver and immense stores of goods which came into his possession have no interest whatever for him, and it lays in the Muslim treasury with a faithful and trustworthy man in charge of it all, and who distributes it to widows and orphans, auxiliaries and emigrants.

"The Mahdi seeks nothing but God. He is kind, and speaks civilly to all. He abhors falsehood, and his pride is to spread the glory of our religion. He fights in the path of God, and only with those who refuse to obey Him. His daily life (peace be unto him) is quite opposed to worldly matters; nor does he care for its enjoyments. He is simple in his diet and plain in dress. Kisoret Dourra steeped in water is all that he eats. A plain shirt and trousers made from the native cloth is all that he wears. He is always smiling, and his face is as resplendent as the full moon. His body and form are of the sons of Israel, and on his right cheek is a khal (wart?) and also other marks which are written in the books of the Holy Law are stamped on him. He neither honors the rich for their riches nor does he neglect the poor on account of their poverty. All Muslims to him are equal.

"If we were to describe to you all the good qualities of the Mahdi it would take a long letter to do so; he is following the footsteps of his grandfather (peace be to his bones); and if you are Muslims and sons of Muslims banish worldly affairs and follow not the inclination of sinful souls, which leads its possessor to destruction, but look to the end and to paradise. With the numerous army of the Mahdi, which is about two hundred thousand fighting men, whose souls are offered to the Lord, we have also Remingtons, guns and rockets which have been taken from the Turks, besides an ample supply of ammunition. The Mahdi, however (unto whom be peace), trusts to God only and will prevent fighting by firearms; spears and swords he fights with, and his connection with the angels is well known, as we well know from the history of Mohammed."

A VISIT FROM SOUNDS.

Mrs. Arp Hears Robbers and Mr. Arp Must Get Up.

Bill Arp in Atlanta Constitution.

It was after midnight. About the time when deep sleep falleth upon a man, but not upon a woman, for Mrs. Arp's ears are always awake it seems to me, I felt a gentle dig in my side from an elbow and a whispered voice said: "William, William, don't you hear that?" "What is it?" said I. "Somebody is in the front piazza," said she. "Don't you hear him rocking in the rocking chair?" And sure enough I did. The chair would rock awhile and then stop and then rock again. "Is the gun loaded?" said she. "They are robbers, but don't shoot, don't make a noise, can't you peep out of the window. Mercy on us what do they want to rob us for. Maybe they come to steal one of the children. Slip in the little room and see if Carl is in his bed. Don't stumble over a chair, maybe somebody is under her bed." The rocker took a start and I had another dig in my side. "It is the wind," said I. "No it is not," said she. "There is no wind, the window is up and the curtain don't move. They are robbers I tell you. Hadn't you better give them some money and tell them to go?" "I haven't got any money," said I. "It's all gone." "Lord have mercy upon us," said she. "William, get your gun and be ready."

I gently slipped out of bed and tiptoed to the window and cautiously peeped out and there was the pointer puppy sitting straight up in my wife's rocking chair and ever and anon he would lean forward and backwards and put it in motion. I whispered to Mrs. Arp to come and see the four-legged robber, which she did, and in due time all was calm and serene.

Last night there was another sensation in the back piazza and it was sure enough feet this time for they made a racket on the floor and moved around lively, and the elbow digs in my side came thick and fast. It took me a minute to get fairly awake and after listening awhile I exclaimed in audible language, "goats, Carl's goats," and I gathered a broom and mauled 'em down the back steps. "I told you, my dear," said I, "that those goats would give us trouble, but I can stand it if you can."

A LOST SWEETHEART.

The Romance of a Young Texan Whom a General's Daughter Discarded.

From the Washington Post.

An interesting romance, to which his untimely death forms a tragic conclusion, was connected with Robert G. Fly, who was shot and killed at Hundo City, Texas, last Tuesday. He was a son of a wealthy mine owner, Major Fly. At San Antonio, Texas, young Fly fell in love with Miss Ord, the daughter of the late General Ord, and they became engaged to be married. But General Ord sent his daughter to enter the post-graduate class at the Georgetown Convent. When this season of probation drew to a close, as he imagined, young Fly came to this city, impatient to claim his bride. Upon his arrival every one was struck with his manly figure. He was tall and handsome and possessed a dashing air, which, though a little nonchalant from his southern and western training, rendered him immensely popular.

He was doomed to a bitter disappointment, however. A sorrow awaited him which overcast the rest of his life and indirectly led to his tragic fate. Immediately upon reaching Washington he went to the convent in quest of the object of his love, but he was informed that the young lady was not there. The sister superior told him that they had received letters addressed to Miss Ord, but that they had not seen her. The young man was rendered almost wild with anxiety; he was involved in a mystery which he could not explain. He searched in every direction and wrote letters, but to no avail. After a few months spent restlessly in this city he went back to Texas, carrying with him a likeness of his lost betrothed (a very beautiful young lady), which he wore in a locket about his neck, and which he probably never parted with during his life.

In Texas his search ended. Miss Ord was there, but he found her at the marriage altar. She became the bride of the Mexican, Gen. Trevino, and her discarded lover lost all desire to live.

AMONG THE NAVAJOES.

The Veteran Gen. Stanley in the City To-Day.

Gen. D. S. Stanley, of Ft. Lewis, Colorado, was met by a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH to-day at the Hotel Barnum. The General is on a furlough and has been spending his time traveling. He is waiting for orders from Washington, and expects to be stationed at Santa Fe.

"Is there anything of interest in the Department in Colorado?" asked the reporter.

"Very little. We have had a ruffle with the Navajoes, but it does not amount to much. We have been trying to abolish peonage slavery among the Navajoes. They hold some of the Moquis as slaves. The latter are called Quaker Indians as they never fight, and are imposed upon by the powerful Navajoes. The Southern Navajoes submitted cheerfully, but some of the wilder Northern braves kicked. They own too much property, however, to fight. They have splendid flocks of sheep. The matter will be settled soon."

"Gen. Crook is getting criticised?" suggested the reporter.

"Yes, they are throwing a few bricks at old George, but he will come out all right. I don't believe the stories they are telling about him."

"What important changes will be made in the army, do you think?"

"There are plenty of rumors, but only three men know anything about it. They are the President, the Secretary of War, and Sheridan. We will find out later," laughingly concluded the veteran, as he turned away.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

Arrest of an Embezzler from Germany, on Carondelet Avenue.

Sebastian Heine, an embezzler, from Glodbach, Rhenish-Prussia, was arrested in this city late Saturday afternoon by the Post Office authorities. He was at the head of the Municipal Insurance System in the town in which he lived. About the 1st of August it was his duty to report, stating what money he had on hand. He left to do so. Nothing was heard of him afterwards, and soon after it was discovered that he had embezzled about 50,000 marks—equal to nearly $10,000. About the 15th of August Gen. Edgarton, the Post Office Inspector in St. Louis, was informed of the matter. Emile A. Becker was put to work on the case. He soon discovered that Heine was in St. Louis. It was finally found out that he occasionally visited his sister's house, on Carondelet avenue near Lafayette. A POST-DISPATCH reporter, who knew all about the gase several days ago, was urgently requested not to publish it, and an assurance given that the news would not be held back. Mr. Becker found Heine on Saturday afternoon in the room behind his sister's store and arrested him. When taken he was armed, and he stated that if he had had time he would have killed himself rather than be captured. A small amount of money was found in his possession. He tells a thin story about losing the rest of it while on his way to account to his superior officer, and of having fled because he could not replace the money. Heine will be held here to await the arrival of the extradition papers.

NEW importations of diamonds will be opened this week by the Mermod & Jaccard Jewelry Company, Fourth and Locust streets, and before purchasing it will be to the interest of all buyers to examine the inducements they will offer.

John McColley, T. J. Doran and Edward Ruaue were jailed yesterday for being drunk and disorderly, and each assessed $3 and costs by 'Squire Draggon this morning.

James Walsh and Edward Dugan were each tried by Squire Draggon this morning for being drunk yesterday, the former being fined $3 and costs and the latter discharged.

Henry Joe, colored, swore out a warrant against another colored man named Edward Johnson in 'Squire Draggon's court this morning, the charge being assault with intent to kill. Mr. Joe was talking to Johnson's wife on Division avenue last evening, when Mr. Johnson rushed between the pair, using a pair of brass knuckles very effectively on Mr. Joe's head. Johnson then armed himself with a large knife and drove the crowd away from the neighborhood. The preliminary examination will be held this afternoon.

Rachael Brown, a lady of color, was arrested by Chief Halloran on a charge of assault and battery preferred by her husband. Rachael thinks her husband is paying too much attention to other colored ladies, and followed him about town yesterday till she caught him in the act of trying to attract the attention of another young colored lady. She immediately assaulted him from the rear, getting in some heavy work before the police separated them. 'Squire Draggon discharged Mrs. Brown this morning on promise of better behavior in future.

ROBINSON AND McLANE.

The Nominees of Two Conventions—Something of their Personale.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 22.—Robinson and McLane, who were respectively nominated as Governors of Massachusetts and Maryland on Wednesday, are well known here. Both were members of the last House. Robinson was reëlected, and McLane might have been if he would have accepted a renomination. McLane first entered Congress in 1847, and was often a member from that time forward. He was Minister to China thirty years ago, appointed by President Pierce, and in the last Congress, when the Chinese bill was up for discussion, he took an active part in the discussion of the subject. He thought that what McLane didn't know about the Chinese and the Chinese question wasn't worth knowing. He thought that the Chinese and the Republican party ought to "go." He is a rather garrulous old man, and don't mind calling people the sort of names that he thinks indicate their real character. He doesn't like President Arthur at all, and some of his remarks about him in the sessions of last winter were by no means of a complimentary nature. Personally he has the air of one of the stately, dignified, polished, well-dressed, with old-time standing collar, smooth face and the air of one who has plenty of money. Robinson of Massachusetts is a different sort of a man. He is perhaps 40, plain in his personal attire and appearance, yet not so much so as to attract attention, very quiet, but always attentive to the business of the House, a hard worker and a hard thinker. When he spoke he always spoke to the point, and no man on the Republican side of the House had more influence than Robinson. With a few words he could accomplish more than any man on that side of the House. More than that, he was always listened to with interest and with profound respect by the opposite side of the House. There was an air of perfect honesty and personal conviction that what he was saying was true, that made his saying always welcome to both sides of the House. Fearless where the question of justice appeared, modest and unassuming yet aggressive when great questions were at stake, strong in his ability to say "no," yet always courteous and obliging so far as consistent with his duties,

OLD SCHOOL SOUTHERN GENTLEMEN,

HE COMMANDED THE RESPECT

of everybody, even when opposing their wishes or advocating principles with which they could not coincide. "Robinson ought to be elected" said a gentleman here who knows him well, yesterday, "and if the Republican party wants a Presidential candidate of ability and integrity, against whom nobody can say anything, and who would rank high as a statesman, he would be their man." One curious feature of Robinson's career is that he has been accused by his opponents of being an anti-temperance man. Speaking of this yesterday a man who knew him well said: "The fact is that Robinson is the most thorough temperance man imaginable. I have seen him at great dinners here, and under all sorts of circumstances, and he never drinks anything but water. He is a temperance man in the strictest sense of the word, but he don't believe in prohibition, and he is so thoroughly honest that he will not advocate anything that he does not believe heartily in."

Bad Double Wreck on the Ohio and Mississippi Railway.

CINCINNATI, September 24.—Later reports from the accident near Seymour, Ind., on the Ohio and Mississippi road, shows no one killed. The five persons left at Mitchell, Willie Dickens, Albert Dickens, J. V. Taylor, wife and child, all bound for DeSoto, Kansas, are doing well this morning and are in good spirits. The boy reported killed is running about. Engineer Phipps, also reported killed, is still alive. His injuries are severe. He was crushed between the engine and a wrecked car on the side track. Trains had been ordered to go slow past the wreck of the freight train, and Phipps was ordered to come to a full stop, as he had a car of unusual width, and was doubtful about its clearing the wreck. He seems to have reached the point before he was aware, though it was well marked by bonfires.

DIAMONDS—New importations will be opened this week by the Mermod & Jaccard Jewelry Company, Fourth and Locust streets, and will be sold at a very small advance on importation cost.

RUPTURE

Dr. F. T. Smythe, President of the Vienna Institute for the cure of Rupture, No. 1105 Olive street (formerly 1113 Washington avenue), has returned from Vienna, Austria, and his European tour, and can be found at the new location (1105 Olive st.) by those in need of his services. Dr. Smythe's vast experience and widely known success in the treatment of Rupture in this and other countries renders a great display of references unnecessary. The following well-known citizens of this city are of the great number we have cured of Ruptures. Rupture produces many painful and fatal diseases, such as diseases of the kidneys, bowels, bladder, fevers, rheumatism, neuralgia, loss or impaired sexual power, back ache, womb diseases, etc., etc.

IMPORTANT TO VOTERS.

Department of Election and Registration.

ROOM NO. 16, CITY HALL,
ST. LOUIS, September 11, 1883.

THE attention of voters is called to the fact that nearly all the house numbers and also many of the names of the streets of the city have been changed.

To avoid being stricken off the Poll Books by the Board of Revision, it will be absolutely necessary for each voter to call in person at the office of the Recorder of Voters, at the City Hall, bringing with him a memorandum of his new house number, and the new name of the street on which he resides, so the proper corrections may be made on the Registration Lists.

Voters who neglect this very important matter will in all probability have their names stricken from the Poll Books, as the Revisers will be compelled to take the new house numbers as their guide in canvassing their respective wards.

For the accommodation of those whose employment prevents from calling during the day, the office will be open until 10 o'clock p. m. for the next thirty days.

A MATCH MADE.

St. Julien and Jay-Eye-See Pitted for $5,000 a Side.

The Greatest Race for Years is Anticipated—St. Julien Trots a Trial Heat—Both Horses in Excellent Condition—Two to One Freely Bet on Dictator's Son.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, September 24.—The old Fleetwood track at Melrose, which has been the scene of many exciting trotting races between the most famous trotters of the day for the past ten years, and on which the best and second best records for gentlemen's teams have been made, will be the scene of the greatest contest next Saturday between trotting horses that has been witnessed since the days of Hiram Woodruff. St. Julien, the king of the turf, and Jay-Eye-See, the phenomenal 5-year-old son of Dictator, will trot a match race for a purse of $5,000, offered by the Gentlemen's Driving Association, which now owns the track. The excitement that began in trotting circles when Jay-Eye-See made 2:10 at Providence was raised to fever heat when the owner of St. Julien signified his willingness against Mr. Case's gelding. For a week past St. Julien has been at the track and has been carefully exercised, until now Mr. Hickok pronounces him to be in fine fix. Jay-Eye-See will arrive at the park on Thursday. Every morning St. Julien has been exercised and several times has shown that though almost two years has elapsed since his last race he is yet speedy. On Saturday morning Mr. Hickok gave him a trial. He was hitched to a forty-eight-pound sulky, and, after a jog to warm him, pulled him up to score for a trial. As the old horse came up to the wire he was going at a great pace. Around to the quarter pole he sped, and then in quick succession the half and three-quarter poles were passed.

TO ALLOW HIS HORSE TO TROT

HE WENT HOME IN 2:15½.

The few people present gave him a cheer. In about twenty minutes he was started again. He tore under the wire and increased his speed at every stride, and it seemed as though his two white hind feet were never on the ground. Down the quarter stretch, around by the picnic grounds, and up by the water-tank he went, never so much as skipping, and with no visible decrease in his speed, though he had to climb the hill to the three-quarters. Then he swung into the home-stretch, and Hickok said, "Come, now, Julie," and the horse, in response to the coaxing tone of his driver, flew down the stretch and under the wire as the watch registered 2:14½. The trial was to have been kept secret,

BUT THE NEWS LEAKED OUT

yesterday, and in the morning, when the usual Sunday loiterers congregated, it was the topic of conversation. About 10 o'clock yesterday St. Julien was driven on the track by Mr. Hickok. He was merely jogged around for two or three miles. While he was being driven on the track the speculation regarding his chances of winning were discussed, and the friends of Dictator's son and the backers of St. Julien had a spirited debate as to the favorite's chances. The backers of Mr. Case's horse were in the majority and had the most money. They were, moreover, anxious to place it, and before many minutes wallets were pulled from pockets and money was bet at the odds of

$2 TO $1 ON JAY-EYE-SEE.

While the excitement was highest in the club house the track below was the scene of some good trotting. The gray gelding Steve Maxwell, with a running mate, was driven by John Murphy in 2:17. Dan Mace drove a bay mare in 2:19½, and Mr. Frank Work drove Edward and Swiveller a slow mile, speeding them between the three-quarter pole and home.

A POST-DISPATCH correspondent paid a visit to St. Julien. The Californian was taking a walking exercise near his stable on the hills opposite Mr. John F. Rogers' stable. He looked in good condition. His coat was smooth and shining and his limbs seemed hard and clean. His eyes were bright, and he was as playful as a kitten. The boy who led him said "Well, they may bet on Jay-Eye-See if they like, but I won't. They think because Mr. Case's horse has made 2:10¾ he can't be beat. They think that because this old fellow hasn't done anything for two years he can't be got fit. Well, let 'em think so; I ain't going to tell 'em different." The track is being put in fine order for Saturday's race, and Superintendent Griffin says he will have it faster than it has ever been before.

MARYVILLE MATTERS.

The Soldiers' Reunion—Political Suggestions—The Schools.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

MARYVILLE, Mo., September 23.—The annual reunion of the Southwest Iowa and Northwest Missouri, Veteran Associations, which takes place on the 25th, 26th and 27th inst., promises to be a grand success. The committees confidently expect an attendance of from twenty to thirty thousand people daily. Distinguished speakers are expected, among whom may be named: Hon. Geo. Anderson of St. Louis, Gen. Bennett, of Indiana, and Gen. Paul Vandevert of Nebraska. Gen. John S. Marmaduke, of this State, and Gen. James M. Tru, of Nebraska, will enjoy the reunion with the "old soldiers." Strenuous efforts are being made to procure the attendance of Gen. Crook. Other men of distinction, too numerous to mention, will be here. A grand parade, guard mounting, drilling and dress parades, will take place on each day of the reunion. The sham battle promises to rival reality in its display of military tactics, maneuvering, cunning, daring and extensive details. In addition to the field exercises, dramatic entertainments will be given each evening at Union Hall, in which the talented Mlle. Dora Carver, of this city, supported by a superb company, will furnish the lovers of amusement with a season of pleasure. The different railroads will carry passengers to and from the reunion at reduced rates. Soldiers attending are only expected to bring a blanket, plate, knife, fork and spoon; all else will be furnished them upon the grounds. "The Boys in Grey" and those in Blue will camp upon the same field, sleep under the same blanket and drink from the same canteen. A general good time is expected, and a general invitation is extended to all.

Politics are quiet. Once and awhile some "worthy individual" in some secluded corner of this commonwealth is being so pressed by his friends that he is compelled to send out letters to the boys requesting their support for some office. Were it not for this incessant and persistent interference of friends politics would be absolutely quiet. The old farmer and the busy merchant would be content to allow the "conventions" to be called next summer to say who was most desired and best fitted to fill official stations. Would it not be a good plan to allow one convention to meet and select candidates? or is it better to have the whole matter arranged before hand by private correspondence between a few individuals? Information is all that is desired.

The city schools are booming and business in every line is livening up.

Barring Up Blissful Elopers.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

HUDSON, N. Y., September 24.—Frank Van de Bogart of Valitas eloped Thursday with Mrs. Stephen Burr. They came here and were arrested yesterday. Mrs. Burr is aged about 40 years and has a husband and five children, while Van de Bogart is unmarried and aged about 35 years. While in jail Mrs. Burr announced her preference for "Squire," as Van de Bogart is familiarly known, and said she had no desire to return to her first love. Yesterday a deputy sheriff arrived here and took the recreant couple home. Van de Bogart was sentenced by Justice Harder to the county jail for thirty days and Mrs. Burr was sent to the same institution for fifty-nine days.

EXCEEDINGLY ECCENTRIC.

The Attractive Letter Posted by a Rhode Island Elder.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NORWICH, September 24.—Beach Pond is a lovely sheet of water, sixteen miles east of this city, in the wildest charcoal region of Western Rhode Island. Its shores are clad in primeval forests. In a cabin in the wilderness dwell Elder Slocum and his wife, and over the door of his lodge is the notice, "Marriages performed for $5 a couple." The Elder is the most eccentric preacher since Lorenzo Dow, whose birthplace, a gambril-roofed house, is in Montville, eight miles west of the city. He has to deal with a rough, backwoods class and his style suits them. About a year ago he appointed a day for his funeral and punctually on the date

HIS OBSEQUIES WERE CELEBRATED

by 100 of his neighbors, who caroused in and about his cabin, while the elder reposed in an open-faced coffin on the table in his sitting-room. All got drunk, and some one set fire to a straw stack, which was consumed, one of the revelers narrowly escaping cremation while attempting to run through the flames. Since the elder hung out his marriage notice he has been over-run with orders, mostly from runaway couples. To accommodate all classes he has to "shade" his price considerably at times, sometimes throwing off 75 per cent for cash. He does business in both Connecticut and Rhode Island. There have been two cases within the past two weeks in which interrupted by paternal interference, flowed from this State over to Beach Pond for relief.

Miss Reilly, of Wauregan, a railroad village in Windham County, loved a careless young fellow, Bob Blye, of the same neighborhood. Her parents objected to Bob's suit and finally locked the young lady in an upper chamber of the house. She yelled and expressed contrition over her misplaced affections. One morning she carelessly informed her mother that she didn't care t marry at present, and that she probably would "live and die an old maid." On account of this expression the freedom of Wauregan was extended to her. She accepted it, and the following night who, it is said, drove over to the Elder's. They were married that evening. The rage of the parents when they learned of the deception was so great that they said nothing. The second case was that of Louis Dauineau and a young lady of Fitchville, six miles north of Norwich, who eloped on last Thursday evening. It is reported that the Elder married the couple, who are only 19 years old. The father of the girl is looking for them with a horse whip curled up in his coat pocket.

WENT TO RIDE WITH HER LOVER,

A PREVENTED PLOT.

The Explosive Force of an Ingenious Infernal Machine.

Equal to 900 Pounds of Dynamite—It Resembles a Lump of Coal—How It Can be Identified—A Change of Flags Saves the New Haytien Man-of-War, Dessaline.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, September 24.—It was discovered to-day that the Haytien man-of-war Dessaline, which is expected to leave this port to-morrow, has narrowly escaped being blown to atoms by agents of the insurgents. George Holgate, the celebrated maker of dynamite machines, who resides in this city, said that had the vessel attempted to sail from this port under Haytien colors, she would have been certainly doomed to destruction in mid-ocean. Holgate had been employed by Sautar, one of the leaders of the revolutionists in the stormy little West Indian isle,

TO MAKE AN INFERNAL MACHINE

of more than ordinarily deadly power, and he tells a vivid story of the preparations which were made to explode the craft. Sautar went to Holgate, as the latter admitted, and asked him if he could make an infernal machine capable of being smuggled aboard the boat, and of sufficient power to destroy it utterly. Holgate agreed to construct such a machine, not asking, of course, for what purpose it was to be applied. The machine was made. It was what is known as a four-day machine. In construction it was peculiar. It resembled a lump of coal, within which was the explosive liquid inclosed in a galvanized can of spheroidal shape. The devices

FOR EXPLODING THE COMPOSITION were most ingenious. A phial of a subtle chemical was so adjusted to a circular spring, falling into a slot upon the disk of a tiny brass wheel, revolving by means of clock work, that at the end of ninety-six hours the vial would be broken, spilling its contents upon the liquid. This latter was a new invention of Holgate. It was of an amber color of the consistency of kerosene. Holgate refuses to disclose the nature of the composition, but says that it contains 50 per cent of nitro-glycerine. For one week Holgate labored upon this machine. When it was completed he showed it to Sautar, who was delighted with it. It possessed an explosive force equal to 900 pounds of dynamite. Sautar and the inventor counseled together several times, and the former determined that should be placed in the coal intended for use on board the vessel. The arrangements to this end were skillfully carried out. Two men, both colored, were employed by Sautar to place the apparent lump of coal in the hold of the vessel. The men found no difficulty, under cover of night, in obtaining access to the yard and located the vessel. The next night, which was Thursday night, they were to have placed the infernal machine along with the coal outside the vessel. It was identified by means of a red nick, looking like a quartz speck upon one portion of the outside. A member of the crew had been

THE INNOCENT LOOKING LUMP

BRIBED TO SET THE MACHINE

the first night after leaving port and he was to keep general supervision over it. On the next day, however it was announced that the boat would sail under the American flag, and that she would not pass into the possession of the Haytian Government until her arrival at Port-au-Prince. This announcement so frightened both Lataur and those concerned with him in the plot that the bogus lump of coal was taken to Holgate, who disposed of it for $1,600 to the agent of the Cuban revolutionists. It was carried away on a New Orleans steamer and it is now, Halgate thinks, in Cuba. Sautar next got Holgate to make an which he carried with him to New York last week. This machine will be carried out to Hayti in a steamer by one of Sautar's agents, a Spaniard named Colquinne. If possible it will be placed aboard the Dessaline at Port-au-Prince. Holgate says there is no doubt but that Sautar's scheme was discovered, or at least suspected, may be through the treachery of the sailor who was to have wound up the apparent lump of coal, and that it was this discovery which led to the plan to sail the boat under American colors. He talks reservedly of the plot relating to the Dessaline, but says he had nothing to do with it beyond the making of the machine, for which he was actually paid $1,000.

EIGHT DAY INFERNAL MACHINE,

AMUSEMENTS.

"Cherub" at Last Night's Openings.

The first instalment of legitimate drama for the present season was had last night at the Grand, Thomas W. Keene, who is beginning his fourth year's work in this field, and his company, being the agency through which we were at last relieved from the wearisome spell of light and comparatively worthless entertainments with which the inaugural weeks of the season were filled.

A not large but still very good house gave the tragedian greeting.

The play was "Richard III." with the star as the hump-backed tyrant—a bill calculated to attract the class of people who will patronize a Shaksperean show on Sunday night.

The performance was good throughout, and with the exception of Miss Anna Warren Story, who as Lady Ann, seemed rather weak and at fault in her elocutionary attempts, the support was entirely creditable.

Keene has always been a fine actor, and since his appearance on the classic stage in stellar roles has demonstrated his ability to create as well as to happily assimilate the best peculiarities of the great histrions who preceded him.

When, at a single bound, three years ago, he leaped, somewhat like Minerva, full armed from the Jovian head of his manager, W. R. Hayden, into prominence on the legitimate boards to dispute the sway of Booth, McCullough and Barret, his work was of a kind that might have been properly termed sensational.

It was full of surprises—and clever surprises at that.

He shook off many of the traditions that hampered the latter-day conceptions of Shakspeare's meanings, and gave readings and interpretations of familiar roles that were to a large extent novel, and in some degree astonishing.

His originality triumphed.

Some critics cried out against the trickiness of his acting; not a few insisted that his method was exaggerated by melodramatic, and that he occasionally lowered the dignity of the character he impersonated by a too popular interpretation of the dramatist's language—an application of off-hand nineteenth century elocution to the rounded and swelling sentences of Avon's bard.

All were, however, agreed in commending his courage for thus swiftly reaching out for the prize of public favor and adopting the surest and speediest means of attaining it—the adaptation of his art to the intelligence and education of the average theater-goer.

He acted not for the scholarly critics alone, whose patronage does not pay, but for the mass of the people, and the mass understood and appreciated him.

He was a successful and paying star the very first season, and artistic success and financial reward have been his portion and the portion of his manager ever since.

Hitherto Shakspeare had been held sacred against innovation. Nothing but the most exalted art was deemed applicable to his conceptions; stilted elocution and stagey manners were required from all who dared to voice his thoughts or clothe his characters.

Keene's crime was sacrilege!

The theatrical puritans made a vicious outcry for his blood, and figuratively burned him at the stake.

Even now, when his banner is firmly fixed on the citadel of public opinion, and triumph fills his heart with a joy that cannot be quenched by the small aspersions of a few querulous critics, the deep-seated bigotry and pitiable fogyism of an occasional self-asserting friend of the legitimate are forced to the surface, and the mob and the stake are, for a moment, recalled to mind.

But the blue-law days of the drama are over. Shakspeare has come down from his solar walks. The dudesque in art is dead, and whether the dramatist is the bad actor who sleeps at Avon, or a word-carpenter of the present day like John A. Stevens or Fred Marsden, his ideas are handled with a North American independence and Fourth of July freedom that are at once agreeable and refreshing to the heart of the ordinary amusement patron.

The modern spirit of liberalism that will not spare the Bible cannot be expected to halt and bend the knee of the title page of Shakspeare's volume.

John McCullough has popularized the Roman drama; Keene is popularizing the Elizabethan.

When I saw his "Richard," last night, I said to myself. "Well, perhaps Shakspeare when he wrote, didn't mean that it should be acted exactly in this way, but if he lived now he would readily comprehend that it could not be acted otherwise, and be so well understood and generally appreciated."

What Colly Cibber and other adapters for the stage, down even to Wm. Winter, have done with Shakspeare's text, Keene is doing with its interpretation—fitting it to the times and the surroundings.

His style now does not differ in anything from what it was when he first attracted attention to it.

His Richard is a succession of striking contrasts, surprises of action and speech that startle the audience into new acquaintanceship with the various phases of the crafty monarch's character.

An unexpected look, a hurried colloquialism, an intense gesture, all these have meanings that cannot be mistaken.

There is, too, an effort at realism in the impersonation that quite sinks its poetic extravagance out of sight and brings the character before you, instinct with life and gifted with flesh and blood, an object for the eye to study as well as for the mind to meditate.

Then again his conception of Richard is based upon the popular acceptation of his memory, cruelty, cunning, and the fatal sin of reckless ambition being its characteristics as the average student of history understands them.

Upon this groundwork, and by means of the methods already suggested, Keene builds up a breathing portraiture of the villainous king that compels and obtains admiration.

His treatment of the part is a refined and elaborated exposition of the methods of his school of acting. The impersonation lacks the perfection and polish of thorough completion, and is not equally strong in all its details.

It is like the statue of the ancient sculptor, which, when viewed from a short distance, betrayed the marks of the chisel, but when placed high up on the temple, where it belonged, was flawless and perfect as the glowing diamond when it leaves the lapidary's hands.

Keene's acting must be viewed from the popular standpoint.

It is not meant to compass the vague unrealities of that strange realm known as high art. It is, as I have said before, for the people, and the people find merit in it and give the actor their generous applause.

All the scenes are effectively rendered by this artist, but that wherein the crown is offered and the later incidents in the tent and on Bosworth field flashed the fires of dramatic intensity and were fairly aglow with the histrionic spirit.

The audience became enthusiastic in their indorsement of Mr. Keene's performance, and called him several times before the curtain.

Richard is one of his great characters, and I understand Manager Hayden intends to star him next season in this tragedy alone, putting it on in spectacular style, and playing it a week in all the large cities of the country.

The support given Keene by J. Newton Gotthold, as Richmond, was all that could be desired. Mr. Gotthold is a good actor, and his work is at all times effective.

P. C. Hagar, who had the part of Buckingham, acquitted himself gracefully, and got a call in the middle of the third act.

The other members of the cast were acceptable, Miss Constance Hamblin, Mrs. S. A. Baker and Miss Kate Baker filling the parts assigned them with considerable credit.

To-night "Macbeth" will be the bill.

I take pleasure in here noting the fact that we are having some new and good music in all the theaters, Wm. Withers at Pope's and Richard Maddern at the Grand, leading in the competition for excellence in this regard.

Last night George Heerid, of Mr. Maddern's orchestra rendered a violin solo, selecting a Vieuxtemps ballad and polinaise, which he rendered so beautifully that the audience was delighted.

Solo performances will be the rule here and at Pope's during the season, and judging from the manner in which the musicians start in, we may expect to find the intervals between the acts hereafter filled in with bright and fresh music in all the theaters, instead of the half-dead-and-alive stuff we listened to last season in some of the houses.

Mr. Maddern's programme at the Grand last evening included besides the Heerich solo an overture from "Semiramide," selections from "Carmen," a fantasia on Scotch melodies, Waldteufel's waltz, "Love's Confession," and Arditi's gavotte, "L'Ingenue."

"A Mountain Pink" was produced at the People's last night to an audience that completely filled the theater.

Miss Louise Sylvester, a favorite here in the days when DeBar had his theater on Pine street, has the star part in this piece and is supported by a good company. The play is located in the "moonshining" districts of North Carolina, and the outlawed condition of the "shiners" perpetually pursued through their mountain hiding places by the revenue officers furnishes the ground work for the story.

The comedy vein is supplied by a queer and impossible sort of heroine—one of the kind usually found in this class of plays that Maggie Mitchell and Lotta have brought into existence—a Fanchon-like creature who begins by being a ragged half-wit and passing through the regular five-act process ends her career in fine clothes and with a halo of heroism shining around her head.

This waif—to whom the fairies of the dramatic world are always good—lends her aid, too, in supplying the sentimental coloring that the piece must have.

She is discovered in her mountain home by a sugar-loaf beaded young gentleman from New York, who is heir to several hundred thousand dollars and all that, and, who, being mistaken by the "Shiners" for a spy, is captured by them and gets into other serious trouble from which he is opportunely extricated by his future bride.

The "Mountain Pink," for that is the name by which the heroine is known, succeeds in winning the hostility of one or two of the females in the play, and in this manner the plot is made sufficiently complicated to put on the disguise of a drama.

Dramatically considered, however, "A Mountain Pink" does not amount to very much. The desire to please has caused the authors to exceed the limitations of their art, and they have given their work an India-rubber-like quality that goes beyond the unities and comprehends anything and everything that might be at all classed as an effective agent in pleasing an audience.

The acts close tamely and are lulled to sleep with music. The story is told and chopped into five parts without much regard to climaxes, and although we are delighted with the star and must confess that the company gives her splendid support, and at the same time find a great deal to enjoy in the performance, we are forced to the calm conclusion that the piece is thin, weak, and has the appearance of a clever "fake"—nothing more.

Miss Sylvester in the title role kept the audience in roars from 8 until nearly 11:30 o'clock.

She impersonates the mountain girl, in which the interest of the play centers. Her singing and dancing are excellent, and she is altogether as bright and talented a performer as the comedy stage now holds.

Miss Sylvester's home is in this city; her earliest triumphs were made here, and being now on the road to permanent success as a stellar attraction, her chief encouragement should come from St. Louisans.

Barry Maxwell, the best delineator of the aged darkey, is with the company, and so are such first-class people as Frank E. Aiken, Harry Hawk, Miss Genevieve Rogers and Miss Helen Sedgwick.

George W. Hyland, the artist of this house, has furnished some remarkably beautiful mountain scenery for the play, all his work being rich in colors and so artistically executed that the audience rewarded it with special rounds of applause.

There was some trouble about the stage-settings last night which interfered with the perfection of the performance, but this will not occur any more.

"A Mountain Pink" to-night again and all week.

Gus Williams had a good house at the People's last night, when he reappeared as John Mishler, the German policeman in "One of the Finest."

He sings the old songs in his pleasing style and introduces several new specialties into the dinner scene of the second act.

He was well received and the play went smoothly, as usual, the support being fully up to the standard of the specialty drama.

De Los King, who takes the part of Mart Devine, the mashing song and dance man, is even better than his predecessor, and last night made a hit.

The ladies of the company are very good. "One of the Finest" will run all week.

RAILROAD COLLISION.

Two Persons Killed and Thirteen Injured by an Accident on the O. & M.

A collision occurred on the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, near Seymour, Ind., at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. The track was known not to be perfectly safe at this place on account of a wreck which occurred there on Friday night. For this reason passenger train No. 3, which left Cincinnati on Saturday night, was ordered to proceed cautiously. At North Vernon a sleeper and coach containing Louisville passengers were coupled on to the end of No. 3. The train was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed when suddenly train No. 5, which left Cincinnati shortly after No. 3 had pulled out of the depot in that city, crashed into the rear of the first train. The coach of the Louisville train was telescoped. It was evident that No. 5 had been operated under mistaken orders. The coach which was telescoped was full of passengers and the total number of killed and wounded was fifteen. This includes Phipps, the engineer of train No. 5, and a little child 5 years of age. The persons most seriously injured were Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Perdue of Sedalia, Mo., who were returning from the Louisville Exposition. Mr. Perdue had his leg broken, and his wife sustained a broken arm and a badly bruised head. Both were able to continue their journey homeward. The rest of the injured people lived along the line of the road, and were taken care of by friends.

The Athletics Demolish the Local Team—Other Games—Notes.

At least 17,000 people went out to the base ball park yesterday afternoon to see the Athletics play their last game with the St. Louis club. More than 15,000 of that number laughed derisively when they saw Bradley preparing to pitch, and the tip was general that George Washington was to have "his eye knocked out." But Mr. Bradley soon switched public sentiment around, and when the game was over Mr. Von der Ahe's men had made just three little hits off his delivery. Mullane was his hard. This is the whole story, for both sides fielded well. Philadelphia got two runs in the first inning, three in the fifth, one in the sixth, one in the seventh and two in the eighth, a total of nine tallies. St. Louis got two runs in all, one in the eighth and one in the ninth. Base hits: Athletics 11, St. Louis 3. Errors: Athletics 3, St. Louis 2. Runs earned: Athletics 3.

On Saturday St. Louis, with McGinnis pitching, won from the Athletics, with "Jumping Jack" Jones in the box, by a score of 9 to 6. Base hits: St. Louis 12, Athletics 11. Errors: St. Louis 3, Athletics 10. Earned runs: St. Louis 3, Athletics 2.

The Metropolitans defeated Columbus at home yesterday by a score of 13 to 5. Base hits: Metropolitans 15, Columbus 6. Errors: Mets 8, Columbus 9. Runs earned: Mets 7, Columbus 1. On Saturday the Mets won from the same club by a score of 7 to 1.

Louisville won the last game of the series from Pittsburg, yesterday, by a score of 4 to 0. Base hits: Louisville 6, Pittsburg 2. Errors: Louisville 0, Allegheny 1. Runs earned: Eclipse 1. On Saturday Louisville also won from the Allegheny Club, but it took eleven innings to do it. At the end of the tenth the score was tied at three runs. Both drew blanks in the 10th, and in the eleventh Louisville got 2 and Allegheny 1.

The Cincinnati Champions shut out the Baltimores on Saturday, the score being 5 to 0, after the fifth inning, when the game was called on account of rain. Yesterday Cincinnati won again in an exhibition game.

The following League games were played Saturday: At Boston—Boston 18, Buffalo 4. At Providence—Providence 11, Cleveland 1. At New York—Chicago 5, New York 3.

AYER'S PILLS.
A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.
These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredients.
A Sufferer from Headache writes:—
"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.
W. L. PAGE, of W. L. PAGE & BRO."
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.
The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."
AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

TRUSTEES' SALES.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas, Edward B. Heacock and Addie Heacock, his wife, by their certain deed of trust dated April 1, 1882, and recorded in book [illegible], page 287, of St. Louis City Records, conveyed to the undersigned trustee the following described real estate with the improvements thereon, lying and being in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit: Lot No. twenty-three (23), city block 235, Cutter's sub-division of block nineteen and twenty-eight and 20, survey 306; said lot twenty-three (23) fronts twenty-five (25) feet on the west line of Glasgow avenue, by a depth westwardly of one hundred and twenty-seven feet and six inches (127' 6") to an alley, and bounded east by Glasgow avenue, south by lot twenty-four (24) of said block, west by an alley and north by lot twenty-two (22) of said block, which conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of certain notes described in said deed; and whereas several of said notes are past due and remain unpaid, now, therefore, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, I will sell said property at public auction, for cash, to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the Court House, in the city of St. Louis, on MONDAY, OCTOBER 8TH, 1883, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of that day, for the purpose of said trust.
JOSEPH T. DONOVAN, Trustee.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE.—Whereas, Elizabeth Schrick and Carl Joseph Schrick, her husband, by their deed of trust dated July 26, 1881, and recorded in book 660, page 104, of the St. Louis City Records, did convey to the undersigned trustee the following described real estate, lying in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, and being lots six (6) and seven (7) of city block 1749 south, in Weil & Gehner's sub-division, as per plat recorded in plat book 8, page 98, of said records, said lots having a total front of 50 feet on the south line of Salisbury street by a depth southwardly between parallel lines of 125 feet to an alley 15 feet wide, bounded north by Salisbury street, east by lot No. 5 of said block, south by alley and west by lot 8 of said block, which conveyance was made to secure the payment of certain promissory notes in said deed of trust described; and whereas, two of the notes in said deed of trust are past due and remain unpaid, now, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, and in pursuance of the terms of said deed of trust, the undersigned will, on MONDAY, THE 1ST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1883, between the hours of 10 o'clock a.m. and 3 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the eastern front door of the Court House in said city of St. Louis, proceed to sell at public vendue to the highest bidder, for cash, the above described property, to satisfy said trust and the expenses of executing the same.
CHARLES BECK, Trustee.
September 6, 1883.

WHEREAS Joseph Vincent, by his deed of trust, dated December 12, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 672, page 3, conveyed to the undersigned the following real estate in said city and State: Lots thirty-eight and thirty-nine in block one of the third subdivision of the St. Louis Common, made under ordinance 3126, approved February 3, 1854, said lots lying also in city block 1439, fronting fifty feet on the west line of Louisiana avenue by a depth westwardly of one hundred and twenty-five feet to an alley, in trust to secure the performance of the conditions of a certain bond in said deed of trust described; whereas default has been made as to the conditions of said bond in this among other things, that none of the payments by said bond required have been made for more than three months last past; therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, and at the request of the holder of said bond, I will, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of
THURSDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,
sell the above described property at public vendue, for cash, to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the Court House in said city of St. Louis, for the purposes of said trust.
FRED. A. WISLIZENUS, Trustee.

WHEREAS Harriet Baumgardner and Francis Baumgardner, her husband and trustee, by their deed of trust, dated the 21st day of June, 1881, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 658, at page 72, conveyed to the undersigned the following real estate: Lot twenty, in block nine of Peter Lindell's first addition to said city, being in block 1952, fronting twenty-five feet on the north line of Laclede avenue by a depth northwardly of one hundred and twenty-eight feet to an alley, in trust to secure the performance of the conditions of a certain bond in said deed described. Whereas default has been made as to the conditions of said bond in this among other things, that none of the payments by said bond required have been made for more than three months last past, therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, and at the request of the holder of said bond, I will, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of
THURSDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,
sell the above described real estate at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court House, in said city of St. Louis, for the purposes of said trust.
FRED A. WISLIZENUS, Trustee.
This property was sold by me and the purchaser assumed the deed of trust. F. A. BAUMGARDNER.

WHEREAS, Edwin E. Anderson and Rebecca C. Anderson, by their deed of trust dated the 1st day of July, 1882, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the City of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 679, at page 463, conveyed to the undersigned the following real estate in said city and State: Lots thirty-five and thirty-six of block six, of Taylor's subdivision of survey thirty-three hundred, in the Grand Prairie common fields, fronting fifty feet on the north line of Kennerly avenue, by a depth of one hundred and forty-five feet to a public alley twenty feet wide, in trust to secure the performance of the conditions of a certain bond, in said deed of trust described; and whereas default has been made as to the conditions of said bond in this, among other things, that none of the payments by said bond required have been made for more than three months last past; therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, and at the request of the holder of said bond, I will, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of
THURSDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883,
sell the above described real estate at public vendue, for cash, to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the Court House in said City of St. Louis, for the purposes of said trust.
FRED. A. WISLIZENUS, Trustee.

WHEREAS Thomas Williams and Mary Williams his wife, by their certain deed of trust dated the 2d day of March, A. D. 1883, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the City of Saint Louis and State of Missouri, in book 694, page 493, conveyed to Edward H. Ponath, trustee, to secure the payment of certain notes in said deed of trust described, the following described real estate, lying and being in the city of Saint Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit: Lot number ten in block C, subdivision of the estate of Henry Morris, deceased, and in city block 4276 in the city of Saint Louis, Missouri, having a front of twenty-eight feet two and one-quarter inches on the north line of Park avenue by a depth along the east line of a street thirty feet wide to an alley upon which it fronts a street twenty-eight feet one and one-quarter inches; and whereas default has been made in the payment of one of said notes, and the taxes remain due and unpaid on said property, now, therefore, notice is given that the undersigned, trustee, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, will, on TUESDAY, THE SECOND DAY OF OCTOBER, A. D. 1883, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 5 p. m. of that day, proceed to sell the property above described at public vendue to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court House in the city of Saint Louis, State of Missouri, to satisfy said debt and the expense of executing this trust.
EDWARD H. PONATH, Trustee.
St. Louis, September 6, 1883.

TRUSTEE'S SALE—Whereas, Frederick Etzel, by his deed of trust dated August 15, 1876, on record in the Recorder's Office of the county, now city, of St. Louis, in book 552, page 398, did convey to the undersigned trustee the following described real estate, lying and being in the county, now city of St. Louis, and State of Missouri, to-wit: Lots numbered six, seven, eight, nine and ten (6, 7, 8, 9 and 10) of block No. fourteen hundred and seventy-four (1474) of the city of St. Louis, said lots containing an aggregate front of one hundred and thirty-five (135) feet in the north line of Wyoming street by a depth east of one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet to an alley 15 feet wide. Also, lot number twenty (20) of block number two (2) of the northeast quarter of block 46 of the St. Louis commons, or city block No. 1472, said lot containing a front of twenty-five (25) feet in the west line of Oregon avenue by a depth of one hundred and twenty five (125) feet to an alley, which said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of certain notes therein described; and, whereas, the principal note described in said deed of trust has long since become due and remained unpaid. Now, therefore, at the request of the legal holder of said note, and in accordance with the condition in said deed of trust contained, I will, on THURSDAY, THE 11TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1883, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m. of that day, at the east front door of the Court House, in the city of St. Louis, Mo., proceed to sell the above described property, at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, for the purpose of carrying out said trust.
DANIEL G. HAMMACHER, Trustee.

TRUSTEE'S SALE—Whereas, Samuel Robbins and Lucia M. Robbins, his wife, by their certain deed of trust dated the 28th day of December, A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in Book 688 at page 418 of the Recorder of Deeds for the City of St. Louis, Missouri, conveyed to the undersigned Robert E. Collins the following described real estate situate, lying and being in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit: Beginning at a point in the south line of Forest Park Boulevard where said south line is intersected by the east line of Lot No. forty-one (41) of Peter Lindell's second addition to the city of St. Louis, thence running southward with said east line of said Lot No. forty-one (41) to a point on said east line one hundred and ninety-seven (197) feet eleven (11) inches north of the north line of Duncan (formerly Bates) avenue; thence westwardly one hundred feet to a point equally distant from the north line of Duncan (formerly Bates) avenue and the south line of Forest Park Boulevard; thence northwardly about one hundred and ninety-seven (197) feet six (6) inches to the south line of Forest Park Boulevard; thence eastwardly with the south line of Forest Park Boulevard one hundred (100) feet to the place of beginning, said real estate therein conveyed being a parcel of block numbered thirty-nine hundred and four (3904) of said city of St. Louis, and having a front of one hundred (100) feet on the south side of Forest Park boulevard by an average depth of one hundred and ninety-seven (197) feet eight and one-half (8½) inches more or less southwardly between parallel lines, the east line thereof being coincident with the east line of lot number forty-one (41) of Peter Lindell's second addition to the city of St. Louis, and the west line thereof being parallel with and distant four hundred and fourteen (414) feet eastwardly from Newstead, formerly Cornelia avenue, which conveyance was so made in trust to secure the payment of certain negotiable promissory notes in said deed of trust described, and whereas one of said notes has become due and now remains unpaid, and default has therefore been made in the payment of said notes; now, therefore the undersigned trustee, in pursuance and by authority of the provisions of said deed of trust, and at the request of the legal holder of said notes, will, on FRIDAY, THE 12TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1883,
between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court House in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, proceeds to sell said property at public sale to the highest bidder, for cash, for the purpose of said trust.

TRUSTEES' SALES.

TRUSTEE'S SALE—Whereas Henry Zeis and Marilda J. Zeis, his wife, of the city of St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, by their certain deed of trust dated the fourth day of December, A. D. 1882, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the city of St. Louis, in book 694, page 139, conveyed to the undersigned, as trustee, an undivided one-sixth interest in, of and to the following described real estate, situate, lying and being in said city of St. Louis, viz.: Lot number ten (10) and the northern fourteen (14) feet off of lot number nine (9) in block number forty (40) of Julia C. Soulard's addition to the city of St. Louis, said block being also known as block No. 709 of said city, having an aggregate front of forty-four (44) feet on the east line of Jackson street by a depth eastwardly of one hundred and forty (140) feet to a twenty (20) foot alley; which conveyance was made to secure the payment of certain promissory notes in said deed of trust fully described; and whereas default has been made in the payment of one of said notes; and whereas the said Henry Zeis departed this life on the 9th day of December, 1882, and more than nine months have elapsed since his death; now, therefore, public notice is hereby given that in pursuance of the powers in me vested by said deed of trust, and at the request of the legal holder of said notes, I will, on FRIDAY, THE 5TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1883,
between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, proceed to sell said undivided one-sixth interest in the property above described, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court House in the city of St. Louis, to satisfy said trust, and the cost and expense of executing the same.
JOHN H. FISSE, Trustee.
St. Louis, September 11, 1883.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas the Rarus and Warrior Consolidated Mining Company, a corporation under the laws of Colorado, did on the 28th day of February, 1883, by its deed of trust of that date, recorded in book 28, page 422, of the records of Chaffee County, Colorado, convey to George Morris, as trustee the Rarus and Warrior Mining Claims, situated in Chalk Creek Mining District, on the west side of Pomeroy Mountain, and known as U. S. Mineral Surveys Nos. 1993 and 1994, together with all the appurtenances thereto belonging, and all property belonging to said company, to secure a note of same date, due six months thereafter, as fully set forth in said deed; and whereas default has been made in the payment of said note, and said George Morris, the trustee is absent from this State, and said deed provides that in case of said Morris' absence the (then) acting Sheriff of the City of St. Louis, Missouri, at the request of the legal holder of said note may proceed to sell the property described; Now, therefore, at the request of the legal holder of said note, I, Isaac M. Mason, Sheriff of the City of St. Louis, and by virtue of my office acting trustee herein, will, on WEDNESDAY, THE 10TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1883, at the east front door of the Court House, in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. of said day, sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, all the property in said deed described, for the purpose of said trust.
ISAAC M. MASON,
Sheriff of City of St. Louis and Trustee.
St. Louis, September 17, 1883.

WHEREAS, by its certain deed bearing date the 6th day of June, 1883, recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the City of St. Louis, in Book 704 at page 455, the Standard Tool Company conveyed to the undersigned, as trustee, the following described real estate and goods and chattels situate, lying and being in the city of Saint Louis, Missouri, to-wit:

First. That certain parcel of land, being the westernmost eighty feet of lots numbered one, two, three and four, of Block number 706 of said City of St. Louis; said lots having an aggregate front of one hundred and eight feet on the eastern side of a twenty foot alley running north and south through said block, by a depth eastwardly of eighty feet as aforesaid; bounded on the north by an alley twelve feet wide running east and west, on the east by land now or formerly of John H. Amelung, on the south by Soulard street, and on the west by said twenty-foot alley.

Second. Also the westernmost one hundred feet of lots five (5), six (6) and seven (7) of said block 706, having together an aggregate front of ninety feet on the east line of said twenty-foot alley running north and south through said block, by a depth eastwardly of one hundred feet as aforesaid, bounded north by land now or formerly of Henry G. Soulard, east by land now or formerly of B. A. Soulard, south by said twelve-foot alley running east and west, and west by said twenty-foot alley.

Third. Also the following described personal property, situated, kept and contained in the manufactory of the party of the first part on the above described premises, to wit: 1 Washoe press and foundation, 1 roll press and foundation, 1 punch press and foundation, 1 shear press and foundation, 6 grindstone-frames with pulleys, shafting and belting, 1 pony hammer and foundation, 6 trip-hammers, frames, pulleys shafting and belting, 14 furnaces, 4 small furnaces, blacksmith fire, 6 oilvers, 1 punching machine, 1 small press, 1 small drill, 1 drop-hammer, 1 hand-shear, 2 bolt headers, 3 tempering tanks, 2 tumblers, engine and boiler, 1 lathe, 1 planer, 1 screw cutter, 1 drill, tools in machine shop, 1 blower, lot of dice and patterns, 2 emery wheels, frames, shafting and belting, 1 saw frame and shafting, polisher frames, wheels, shafting and belting, office furniture, safe, main building, rear building, coke and coal sheds and carpenter shop.

And whereas, the property described above as "first" and "third" was and is subject to the lien of a certain deed of trust executed by said Standard Tool Company to A. Moll as trustee, to-wit: its deed of trust bearing date the 10th day of October, 1881, made to secure the payment of its certain promissory note for $6,000, which said deed is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the City of St. Louis, in book 659, at page 452, to which record reference is hereby made.

And whereas, all the property conveyed to the undersigned as aforesaid was and is subject to the lien of that certain deed of trust of the said Standard Tool Company to said A. Moll as trustee, bearing date the 18th day of April, 1882, made to secure the payment of its certain promissory note for $4,000, which said deed is recorded in the office of said Recorder, in book 687, at page 213, to which record reference is hereby made.

And whereas said deed made to the undersigned as aforesaid was in trust to secure the payment of certain promissory notes therein mentioned, and whereas all said notes have matured, and part thereof remain unpaid, and the undersigned has been requested by the holder of said unpaid notes to sell said property under said deed. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that the undersigned will, as trustee, on FRIDAY, THE 28TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1883, between the hours of 10 in the forenoon and 2 in the afternoon, at the east front door of the Court House in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, proceed to sell the property hereinbefore described, subject to the liens hereinbefore mentioned, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, for the purpose of such trust.

St. Louis, September 22, 1883.

TRUSTEE'S SALE—Bernard Murphy, trustee under the will of James McDonald, et al. vs. Elizabeth McDonald, et al.—In Circuit Court, City of St. Louis.—By virtue and authority of an amended order of sale, dated July 30th, 1883, and of an order supplementary thereto, dated September 19, 1883, made in the above cause in said court, I, the undersigned trustee, under the last will and testament of James McDonald, will, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., on MONDAY, THE 15TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1883, sell, at public outcry, on the premises, to the highest bidder, the following described property, situate in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, viz., certain lots or tracts of land in United States Survey No. 2035 to Charles Gratiot:

First. The west half of a lot of ground designated or numbered as lot or block No. 7 on plat of the subdivision of said survey made by H. W. Leffingwell, surveyor for Robert E. Ewing, United States Marshal, and by him filed for record April 17, 1848, in the Recorder's office of (old) County of St. Louis, and is marked on said plat with the letters "U. S." and is bounded on the north by lot No. 8, on the west by lot No. 10, on the east by eastern part of lot number seven (7), and on the south by the southern boundary line of said survey, and containing ten (10) arpents of land.

Second. The west half of lot number 8 on the plat of said survey, beginning at a stone, Trusten Polk's northwest corner; thence north eighty-three (83) degrees and ten (10) minutes west with the north line of this survey five chains and eighty-six one-hundredths chains (5 86-100 ch.) to a stone, the corner between lots numbered eight and nine (8 and 9) of said survey; thence south 80 degrees 40 minutes west with the eastern line of lot No. 9 forty-five one-hundredths (45-100) chains to a stone, the northwest corner of a lot purchased by the United States; thence westwardly south 83 degrees 10 minutes east and parallel with the north line five and eighty-six one-hundredths chains to a stone; thence north 80 degrees 40 minutes, east 14 50-100 chains to the beginning, and containing ten (10) arpents.

Third. The east half of a lot designated as Lot Number 9 on the plat of the subdivision of said survey as above recited, which is bounded on the north by the northern line of said survey, on the west by the west half of said Lot Number 6, on the east by Lot No. 8 on said plat, and on the south by Lot No. 10 on said plat, and containing 10 arpents.

Fourth. The east half of a lot designated as Lot Number 10 on the plat above recited, and which is bounded on the north by said Lot Number 9, on the west by the west half of said Lot Number 10, on the south by the south boundary line of said survey, on the east by Lot Number 7, and containing 10 arpents.

The above described property being the same acquired by James McDonald from John Johnson by deed recorded in Book 231, at page 106, in office of Recorder of Deeds for the (now) City of St. Louis, Missouri, to which for a fuller and more accurate description reference is hereby made.

Sale will take place at one o'clock p. m.

Terms—One-third cash, balance in one and two years in equal instalments, with six per cent interest annually, or all cash at election of purchaser. The property may be sold in two equal or nearly portions. Sale subject to the approval of said court.
